HANDCUFF THUGS FLED IN HUE AUTO

Three thugs, two men and a woman, who handcuffed a Stamford, Ct., policeman to a fence Thursday night were driving an automobile stolen Wednesday on St. Stephen street in the Back Bay. The car was found ditched at the foot of Tall Gate Hill, near the New York-Connecticut line today with the Massachusetts registration plates 57,286. Inquiry revealed the plates had been issued to Frank M. Boss of 43 Mt. Vernon Terrace, Dorchester. He reported the theft of his car Wednesday.

THIRD IS NEAR DEATH AFTER LEAP FOR LIFE AS POLICE HUNT FIEND

While the police were searching for a firebug believed to have set fire to the three-story apartment at No. 51 Humboldt avenue, Roxbury, two girl victims died at the City Hospital from burns and injuries suffered in escaping from the building. A third is dying.

Rita and Mary McNamara, sisters, nine and nineteen years old respectively, died twelve hours after they were taken to the hospital. Blood transfusions were tried in vain to save the older girl.

Miss Ida Collins of No. 43 West Cottage street, Roxbury, who was visiting in the house when the fire started and who leaped from the third story after dropping Rita McNamara to the ground, is recovering although seriously injured and burned.

The three girls were trapped in the McNamara tenement on the third floor and frantic with fright, deaf to the cries from would be

HUNDREDS ARE SLAIN IN BATTLE OF WARSAW

Berlin, May 14.—The revolution forces led by Marshal Piludski today took partial control of Warsaw after terrific street fighting, in which 400 persons were killed, according to reports received here.

One report said Pilsudski had been "slightly wounded," but gave no details.

The reports added that several cabinet members had been taken prisoners and that other government officials had fled the city.

Disorders are reported as increasing, with bands of civilians marching through the streets shouting, "Long live Pilsudski."

Persons who refused to tip their hats when the marshal's name was mentioned are said to have been clubbed.

The Polish press bureau here has received a telegram stating that President Wojciechowski and the remaining government officials are still in Belvedere Palace.

Government air forces are said to have bombed the revolutionary headquarters of Marshal Pilsudski during the day's battle. Foreigners are fleeing the country.

Generals Haller and Sikorski are coming to the government's rescue with provincial regiments, which

RAILWAY WORKERS END STRIKE IN GT. BRITAIN

London, May 14 (A.P.).—Official announcement that the railway strike has been settled was made today. It is understood that the railmen will return to work immediately.

The London County tramway strike was settled earlier in the day, thus adding materially to solve the local transportation problem.

A spokesman for the Trades Union Congress announced today that there had been considerable easement in the industrial situation throughout the country.

The report was based on telegrams from the general secretaries of the T. U. C. in various sections including Scotland.

Premier Baldwin declared in the House of Commons that a new proposal for settlement of the mine strike was under consideration.

In regard to the rail strike the trade unions admit that in calling

Rifle Club in Girl Camp Plea to Coolidge

WASHINGTON, May 14 (I.N.S.).—A direct appeal to President Coolidge to support civilian training camps for women, along lines recently suggested by Miss Helen Moloney of Brooklyn, was made today by the executive committee of the National Rifle Association, headed by General M. A. Reckard.

Congress failed this year to appropriate money for the annual rifle matches and for continuance of the school at Camp Perry, O.

The delegation today strongly recommended that President Coolidge take action to insure their continuance.

OSBORNE DEATH REPORT MIXUP

Similarity of names and vocations caused erroneous reports in morning newspapers of the death of Thomas Mott Osborne, former warden of Sing Sing, when the death of George C. Osborne, well known prison reform advocate and for ten years warden of New Jersey penitentiary, was announced. Both have been active in prison reform work.

Thomas Mott Osborne is due in New York today from Brunswick, Me., in good health.

NEW QUIGLEY TRIAL JUNE 8

The second trial of eleven defendants in the alleged Chelsea rum conspiracy will begin on Tuesday, June 8, it was announced today by Federal District Attorney Harold P. Williams.

The list of eleven defendants is headed by Mayor Lawrence F. Quigley of Chelsea and Inspector Thomas Quigley, the Mayor's brother. Sergeants Walter Barden and Edward W. Isbester and Patrolmen Edward Forbes and Thomas McGreavey, all of the Chelsea police.

In the first trial, before Judge Brewster and a jury, the jur disagreed after being out eighteen hours. The report was that they stood 11 to 1 for conviction.

HOLD CLERK ON OLD CHARGE

On a secret indictment returned nearly two years ago, Allen H. Bearse, assistant clerk in the Suffolk Superior Civil Court, was arrested Wednesday, it was learned today. The indictment charges larceny of $2,140 from Mrs. Virginia Brunette of Providence in an alleged fraudulent real estate deal.

In August, 1924, the secret indictment was returned, after Mrs. Brunette made complaint to the office of Dist. Att. O'Brien, but, although the assistant court clerk has been at his work regularly since that time, the warrant was not served until this week.

The arrest on Wednesday was made by Officer George H. McCaffrey, attached to the District Attorney's office, according to the record, and the same record says Bearse was allowed to go in $5,000, on his own recognizance.

Bearse has been assistant clerk of Superior Civil Court for 18 years, and before that was clerk in the divorce court.

Bearse resigned his position yesterday, the resignation being accepted today by the chief justice. A copy of the resignation was forwarded to the Secretary of State for the Commonwealth and another to the county auditor.

FARMER SLAIN, SKULL SHOWS

Atkinson, N. H., May 14.—The order theory in the death of Louis Jacobwitz, whose charred body was found in a field, gained strength today when Medical Referee Eugene Eastman of Rockingham County reported that the skull was fractured and furrowed with a wound two inches long.

The farmer is believed to have been slain with a shovel found near the body.

A posse was organized to scour the woods in search of Frank Owens, a farmhand, whom Jacobwitz is said to have feared, and authorities in Haverhill, Lowell, Lawrence and Derry were requested to be on the lookout for him.

The charred body was removed to Junkins' undertaking rooms at Exeter where Dr. Eastman will perform a complete autopsy. His examination of the skull was made at the scene. Virtually all the deputy sheriffs in the county are here for the search of the woods under the leadership of Sheriff Spinney and Chief of Police Charles Wheeler.

WIRELESS STATIONS SEIZE RIGHT OF WAY TO HUNT FOR POLAR AIRSHIP

Seattle, Wash., May 14 (A.P.)—Advices received here by the Associated Press at 7 a. m. today, Eastern standard time, from a navy radio station at Hinchinbrook Island, near Cordova, Alaska, said that station had intercepted a message from an unknown station to the effect that the airship Norge had passed over Point Barrow at 9 a. m. yesterday, Pacific coast time. The message added that all aboard were well. All radio stations in Alaska were immediately ordered to try to verify the message.

Seattle, Wash., May 14 (A.P.)—Groping into the icy vastness of the Arctic "blind spot," a dozen Pacific coast radio stations today tried to locate the dirigible Norge, many hours overdue at Nome in its polar flight from Spitzbergen.

RUTLAND PRISONERS SAW THEIR WAY OUT

Sawing two bars in their ground floor cell and then scaling a 16-foot yard wall, two prisoners at the State prison camp at Rutland escaped early today.

They were Harry Davis, convicted safe blower and alleged dope fiend, whose last civilian address was in Riverside Drive, New York, and Edward Mulcahy, serving a term for larceny and claiming San Francisco as his home.

According to Superintendent Willard J. Turner of the prison camp, the two men, with secreted saws, severed the bars of the cell in which both were confined and then apparently had a rope and hooks secreted somewhere, with which they went over the wall.

The convicts were seen along the Hubbardston road. They still wore their prison gray.

Davis was one of three men captured in February, 1925, after blowing a safe in the Treco Jewelry Co., No. 315 Washington street, when the trio used an overcharge of dynamite and showered window glass down on a policeman outside.

JUNKMAN HELD FOR NAVY COPPER THEFT

Portsmouth, N. H., May 14.—Louis Zeidman, a junk dealer, of No. 27 Hancock street, was arrested today and held for the Federal authorities of Portland, Me., in connection with the disappearance of copper valued at $600 from the Portsmouth Navy Yard on April 24.

Ziedman, the police say, was lessee of a barn owned by Irving Roulston of Greenland where the missing metal was found in a hay mow. Roulston having told the police he had rented the barn to Zeidman for a month. The metal was returned to the Navy Yard.

Cuba to Decorate Maine Survivors and Heroes' Kin

Havana, May 14 (A.P.).—Survivors of the sinking of the battleship Maine in Havana Harbor in 1898 have been cited to President Machado by the National Association of Revolutionary Emigrants for decoration with the order of naval merit.

The petition also requests decorations with the order of military merit for several others, including Major-General Leonard Wood, former Governor-General of Cuba, and now Governor-General of the Philippines; the sons of former President Theodore Roosevelt and the late Senator Redfield Proctor of Vermont, who drafted the joint resolution adopted by the United States Senate and House declaring Spain was at war with the United States.

ETERNAL PATIENCE and endless experiment build up scientific knowledge. Professor Warburg, head of Berlin's Biological Institute, proves that cancers cannot live without oxygen. Cancers planted in a living rat grew. He put the rat in a glass cage, cut the oxygen down to barely enough to keep the rat alive. The cancer withered and died in 48 hours. The rat threve and resumed eating when full oxygen was supplied. That will not "cure cancer," but may help to a cure.

THE BRITISH STRIKE cost $8,500,000 an hour, seventeen hundred millions in all. "The government's victory makes it certain that no similar strike will again occur."

If that were certain, the price of the strike would be reasonable. But it was not a "government victory." Labor has proved that it can tie up the country. What is done once, may be done twice.

LONDON'S STRIKE ends, other troubles start. Poland's situation is a downright revolution, many killed in street fighting, unpleasant news for the "League" which was "to end war by arbitration." When men want to fight THEY FIGHT.

GERMANY HAS milder troubles. Hindenburg having the confidence of all but extreme radicals will keep the machine going. The latest row was about the German flag. Kalserism wanted the old flag on Germany's foreign embassy. Others wanted personally kept watch throughout the night. All traffic has been ordered to suspend for any word of the dirigible.

Fog was reported last night at Nome and other Alaskan coast points, indicating the Norge may be battling a storm off Point Barrow. Radio stations are continuing to attempts to get compass bearings to the dirigible.

It is known that Roald Amundsen and his crew of seventeen passed over the North Pole at 7 o'clock Tuesday night, Eastern Standard Time. It was reported that the dirigible was sighted off Point Barrow, on the Arctic coast of Alaska, at 1:00 a. m. yesterday.

Five times Wednesday night and once yesterday the United States Navy's powerful radio station at St. Paul's Island, Alaska, reported hearing messages from the Norge. The last time was at 7:23 a. m. yesterday, when the Norge was heard to call a station and say "Go ahead."

HIS PREVIOUS SURPRISE.

Those who know Amundsen best are only slightly fearful of the worst today. They recall a previous adventur of his into the Arctic some years ago, when he discovered the northwest passage and dropped from sight for more than two years.

Then one day a bearded, unkempt musher appeared at the lonely government telegraph station at Eagle City, Alaska, and filed a long cablegram to the Norwegian government. The operator declined to send it, as he had instructions to send no collect messages from parties he did not know. He messaged his chief that a "crazy man" had tried to send a long telegram half way around the world, and they had a good laugh about it.

"HE WHO LAUGHS LAST."

The chief signal officer in the Seattle cable office heard about it and chuckled over it to a newspaper man friend. The newspaper man began to speculate over the incident and offered to pay the tolls of the telegram if he could look at it when it came in. It was Amundsen's report to the Norwegian government that he had threaded his way along the northern coast of America to discover the northwest passage, the short way to China sought for by adventurers for centuries.

Amundsen's acquaintances suggest the explorer may be preparing to spring a new surprise on the world, that he was not satisfied with flying over the last unexplored part of the globe, but wanted to look it over thoroughly and, with his craft in sight, turned back to survey it again.

Meanwhile, Nome's 600 citizens are gazing somewhat wearily toward the North and the triumphal arch which they labored day and night to construct for his coming is waiting.

$35 STAMP ON LETTER.

Nome's aviation field, constructed several years ago, has been groomed for the landing of the airship, and the word "Norge" painted in large white letters on the field. One hundred men have been mustered by Ralph Lomen, reindeer king of Alaska, and Norwegian Consul of Nome, to grasp the ropes from the Norge and haul it to earth.

The Norge is carrying the first letters ever mailed at Spitzbergen for the United States via the North Pole. The Polar route cuts down the distance from Spitzbergen to Alaska to about 2,000 miles, compared with approximately 10,000 by the nearest other route or about 20,000 by usual commercial routes.

The stamps for the letters on the Norge were made especially for the trip by the Norwegian Postoffice Department. They show a Polar bear on an ice floe gazing up at an airplane. Stamp collectors value the issue at $25 a stamp.

Norge May Be Returning Now to Spitzbergen

Washington, May 14 (A.P.).—Reports from Alaska received by the Weather Bureau today indicate good flying conditions north and northeast of Nome along the probable course of the Norge.

The weather was reported cloudy at Nome but with little wind and the only storm in that region was south of Nome, toward the Aleutian Islands.

Should the Norge have turned back toward Spitzbergen, it will probably find fairly good weather, except for possible fog, the Weather Bureau said. It is snowing at Spitzbergen with light northeast winds. Towards the Pole, and beyond, good weather is indicated.

All Italy in Dread of Norge Disaster

Rome, May 14 (A.P.).—Considerable anxiety over the fate of the polar dirigible Norge was felt throughout Italy. The great outburst of enthusiasm that followed the news that the Italian built craft had passed over the North Pole has given way to a wave of dread.

The only news was transmitted to the Stefani Agency by the Associated Press in bulletins scanned with excitement resembling the war period.

One of those most concerned was Mrs. Hamon S. Prentice, sister of Lincoln Ellsworth, the American member of the Norge expedition. Mrs. Prentice, who is staying at the Villa Palmieri at Florence, received the bulletins from Rome.

U. S. Claim to Ownership of Pole Upheld by Experts

Washington, May 14.—Who owns the North Pole?

The United States of America owns it, so far as any nation of the world, in the present circumstances, can own it.

The National Geographic Society said today:

"The circle of discovery establishes a primary case of sovereignty, and since Admiral Peary planted the flag of the United States at the North Pole ahead of any other flag in the world, that would seem to settle it for the time being."

Upon authority of the state department, it was pointed out that the mere right of discovery is not conclusive for all time.

Three things are necessary to establish progressive and final sovereignty: First, discovery; second, occupancy; third, notification to the world that it is ours.

The claim of the United States to sovereignty rests upon the right to discovery alone. But Norway now claims it, following Amundsen's flight in the Norge, and has proclaimed that fact to the world.

The state department right now is willing to admit that Uncle Sam's claim may be shaky as to its final lap. But it will not give up.

MAYER GREETED IN OLD HOME

With the acclaim of welcoming delegations ringing in his ears, Louis B. Mayer, vice-president of the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer film producing corporation, today had again the streets of Boston where his early working days were spent.

State and city officials, representatives of the fire and police departments, photoplay and theatrical folk, and members of the International Association of Fire Engineers of which Mayer is an honorary member, were at the South Station to greet the popular producer of "Ben Hur," "The Big Parade," "The Merry Widow," "Mare Nostrum," an dother epochal films, when he arrived on the Twentieth Century Limited.

An automobile parade through Summer, Winter, Tremont and Boylston street to the Copley-Plaza Hotel followed the reception, fire apparatus leading the line of cars.

After a visit of a few days with Boston friends, Mayer will return direct to California to begin work on the filming of new stories.

dispatches say, have abandoned "the Fascist revolt."

A Czech agency dispatch from Prague says that Marshal Pilsudski's troops are holding up trains coming from the German frontier at Skierniewic, fifty miles from Warsaw. The tracks have been destroyed or have been occupied by his troops from that point to Warsaw.

By controlling the railroads into the city, the dispatch says, Marshal Pilsudski hopes to intercept the passage of government reinforcements.

According to this dispatch, Premier Witos was reported to have been taken a prisoner. Pilsudski also has confiscated all Warsaw newspapers, only permitting the publication of his own bulletins.

The Thirty-sixth Infantry Regiment, which is supporting Pilsudski, has occupied Lodz, according to private reports from Danzig.

New York, May 14.—Lady luck did not smile on Walter S. Ward in his gambling at poker and the horse races for ten weeks before his disappearance, during which time he is said to have lost $35,000, it became known today.

The sky is said to have been the limit at a regular Monday night game which Ward is said to have patronized. Ward's luck is said to have been running the wrong way for weeks and on the last Monday night he attended he drank heavily. The millionaire baker also is said to have been in debt to several race track bookies.

the strike they had committed a wrongful act against the companies. In the settlement it was agreed that the companies do not, by reinstatement of the men, surrender their legal rights to claims for damages arising from the strike or from the strikers or others responsible.

Those employes who went on strike are to be taken back as soon as traffic conditions warrant and work can be found for them.

ARE DEFYING THE KING.

A. J. Cook, secretary of the Miners' Federation, in authority for the statement that the strike has been converted into a general lockout through the announced declaration of some of the employers that they will re-employ their old hands only under conditions.

"Those of the employers who are refusing to reinstate their workers unless wage reductions are accepted are deliberately and maliciously defying His Majesty's appeal for peace," says the British Worker, organ of the strikers.

Premier Baldwin in the House of Commons has announced he intends to fulfil all his promises with regard to further negotiations for peace in the labor situation, and also has made a strong appeal for conciliation and the avoidance of vindictiveness.

rescuers. Miss Collins swung the little McNamara girl through the window and leaped after her. Both suffered broken bones.

The elder girl was rescued by Herman Chapnick, a sailor attached to the U. S. S. Merrill who made his way into the building through a blazing rear stairway and dragged the girl to safety, but not before she had been burned from head to foot and probably inhaled flames.

Mrs. Saul Allen, her children, Milton, Beatrice and Muriel, and Mrs. Adeline Cantor and son, Norman, were among those driven out by the flames.

The fire was the first of two in the neighborhood and at first was thought to have started from defective electric wiring. Suspicious circumstances attending the second blaze led to the belief that an incendiary applied the torch. This theory was strengthened when it was found that the wiring in the basement were the fire started, was recently installed and properly inspected.

ACCIDENT TO COP SAVES SMITH GIRL FROM TRIAL

Westfield, May 14.—Miss Lucy Taylor, Smith College student, was saved the ignominy of a court trial today on a charge of failing to stop her motor car when commanded because State Trooper Martin Joyce, her accuser, was thrown from his motorcycle while driving to local district court from Agawam barracks. Judge W. S. Kelloy dismissed the case for want of prosecution 10 minutes before Joyce limped into the courtroom. Miss Taylor, whose home is in Washington, was halted by shots from Trooper Joyce's revolver when she attempted to race through a police bootlegger's trap in Southwick the night of April 22.

PLANNED TO RUN AWAY, HUSBAND SAYS

Ellsworth Bassett and 23-Year-Old Bride Believed Headed for Atlantic City

Madison, Ct., May 14.—Ellsworth Bassett, former chauffeur, clam digger, and small-town handy man, who achieved notoriety as business manager for Nina Wilcox Putnam, the writer, is missing from this place, and likewise a pretty young wife has vanished.

This pretty young wife is Mrs. Muriel Adele Blanchard Nelson, 23, and her husband has enlisted friends in New York to aid in the search for her.

The despairing young husband asserts that Bassett and his wife had threatened to elope, and he believes they are trying to make their threat good. He further says that his wife and Bassett were seen driving toward New York together.

"My wife is a beautiful girl, in my opinion," Nelson said. "After we were married she opened a dress shop in Madison. Bassett, who is town agent for an automobile firm, began to hang around her shop. I told my wife she would have to cut his friendship. I called both of them on the carpet, and they told me they intended to go away together. Bassett said he was tired of his wife and wanted someone with more pep. My wife told me, 'You cannot give me all the love I require.' When they left Bassett took his dress suit with him, and that spells Atlantic City to me."

At the time Bassett was notoriety as Miss Putnam's manager, his wife charged Miss Putnam had broken up their home. Bassett and Miss Putnam are no longer friends, it developed, since that limelight episode.

Nelson said his wife and Bassett left in Mrs. Nelson's car.

SUITCASES ARE CLEWS IN HUNT FOR WARD

New York, May 14 (I.N.S.)—The trail of Walter S. Ward, missing son of the millionaire baker, today led to Stroudsburg, Pa., following the receipt by his wife here of two suitcases bearing the initials of her husband shipped from that city.

New York detectives, together with private operatives, hurried to Stroudsburg today to probe what was believed to be the most substantial clue provided since the young millionaire vanished a week ago.

Philadelphia police previously had reported that Ward had been traced to the Quaker City before his automobile was found abandoned last Friday at Trenton, N. J., with its windshield broken and a paving stone in the driver's seat.

Captain John R. Ayres of the New York Police Bureau of Missing Persons, today ordered the arrest of Stanley Lewis and Charley Ress for questioning in connection with the vanishing of young Ward. These two men were mentioned as alleged accomplices during the trial of Ward in 1923 for the slaying of Clarence Peters in which Ward was acquitted.

HOLD MAN FOR KICKING GIRL

Edgar McDonald of Harrison avenue, South End, was arrested near his home today as the man who kicked and injured Miss Gertrude Leahy, stenographer in the office of the overseers of public welfare.

The arrest was made by Patrolman George Smith, who was accompanied by Miss Leahy. The girl identified McDonald on the street as her assailant.

Miss Leahy was kicked on Wednesday morning as she was on her way to work. She collapsed on the street.

A few hours later Miss Florence Sullivan, clerk in the same office, reported the same man had followed her.

EVERETT IN MOURNING DURING BURIAL

All Police at Lonergan Service; Women Faint in Great Crowd at the Church

Everett turned out en masse today to pay honor to Inspector John J. Lonergan, murdered policeman, as his body was laid to rest in Holy Cross Cemetery, with funeral services in the Church of the Immaculate Conception in Broadway.

Thousands filled every available spot of the church, lined Broadway on both sides from the edifice to the cemetery in Malden, and perched in windows and on the roofs of buildings to view the impressive funeral procession that was led by Everett city officials and policemen, marching on foot.

The entire Everett police force attended the funeral, and officers from Malden and Chelsea patrolled beats and handled traffic in Everett during the services.

CHILDREN IN LINE.

More than 9,000 Everett school children formed a guard of honor along Broadway as the procession moved toward the cemetery. Scores of automobiles followed the hearse, the first of these cars carrying the widow an dfive children of the slain officer.

Several women fainted in the church during the services and were assisted outside. The jam inside and outside the church was tremendous and the police had difficulty holding the throng in check after the church was filled and the doors closed.

NOTABLES PAY TRIBUTE.

Police representatives from Boston and surrounding cities and towns were at the services and accompanied the body to the grave. More than 200 members of Everett Council, Knights of Columbus, and Everett Lodge, A. O. U. W., of which Inspector Lonergan was a member, were in attendance, as were 100 members of the Red Men and Odd Fellows.

Mayor Lester D. Chisholm and Chief of Police William D. Hill led the official delegation, which included the City Council and practically all employes of the city administrative departments. Twenty-five firemen represented the fire department.

A solemn high mass of requiem was celebrated by Rev. P. H. Riley, pastor of the church.

MADRID FLIER'S TROUSERS ARE STOLEN IN MANILA

Manila, May 14 (A.P.).—Captain Loriga, one of the Spanish aviators who completed a flight from Madrid to Manila, was the victim of an incident in which he lost his trousers. Military police are working on the theory that some enthusiast entered the aviator's room and took the trousers as a souvenir. The loss kept by Captain Gallarza, whose plane was the only one of three which started from Spain to finish the flight, shows that he flew from Madrid to Manila in 114 flying hours, covering 17,800 kilometers (11,054 miles).

REHEARING IN SACCO CASE IS ASKED

Counsel for Nicola Sacco and Bartolome Vanzetti, convicted payroll murderers, opened a "last ditch" fight to save them from the electric chair today when Attorney William G. Thompson, who argued before the Supreme Court for a new trial, appealed to the court for a rehearing of arguments which the court has before overruled.

Sentence of death will be pronounced upon the pair by Judge Webster Thayer in Norfolk Superior Court, Dedham, tomorrow unless Attorney Thompson's latest move halts proceeding.

The Supreme Court convenes again Monday and, pending action on the new defence motion, Judge Thayer will be asked to allow the accused men to confer with counsel.

The full bench of the Supreme court denied motions for retrial of the case last Wednesday.

the flag of the German Republic. Hindenburg suggests a new flag by way of compromise.

THE RELIGIOUS question continues to agitate Mexico, and President Calles, apparently, pays no attention to protests. In various towns in the State of Tobasco, Calles has closed seven Catholic churches, and will use the buildings for public schools.

He alleges that clergymen in charge of the churches abandoned the buildings rather than comply with the terms of Mexico's new Constitution, and thus forfeited their right to the property.

MANY ARE puzzled by the fact that the Catholic Church should encounter these difficulties in Mexico, and in other countries, always and fundamentally Catholic, and not in the United States, where the government does not officially recognize any religion. The less government has to do with religion, the better for religion, the people, and government.

JOHANNES TEELLE, a giant young Hollander, deserted from his ship, defying our immigration laws. While he was on the dock waiting to be deported, a woman tried to commit suicide, a coast guardsman went after her, and was sinking with her. Johannes jumped in, and saved them both.

THE QUESTION IS now, shall this young person be kicked out of the United States? Is he the kind of person we DON'T want? He jumped into the water all dressed, and dripping wet was put aboard the Veendam bound for Holland. Perhaps he will have another chance.

MEN HAVE everything to learn about fast travel on water. No land animal, antelope or cheetah, can beat a locomotive. No bird can keep up with an airplane. Many fishes, big and little, can swim around the fastest boat. Water, a perfect ball bearing surface, should supply transportation three times as swift as any on the ground.

A THIRTY-FOOT craft called the "Sea Flea" recently constructed on the Mediterranean may be the first really FAST boat.

This "Sea Flea" is driven by an airplane propeller, and when it reaches 70 miles an hour, it skims along the top of the water, like a flat stone thrown across the surface of a pond, touching only here and there.

HEAR AHERN IN 'DUMMY' PROBE

Associate Justice Timothy J. Ahearn of Roxbury District Court was the first witness to testify today at the inquiry by a special session of the Suffolk County Grand Jury into alleged substitution of "straw men" for real defendants in liquor cases in that court.

Judge Ahern was in the jury room for a long time. He was followed by more than a dozen others, including Henry Ryder, assistant clerk of the court, and Louis Ritz, secretary of the Boston Licensing Board.

Grand jury investigation of the alleged use of straw men as defendants in liquor cases in the district courts of Suffolk county got under way today with a dozen witnesses testifying.

Excitement prevailed in the corridors of the courthouse and a crowd gathered about the doors of the district attorney's office and grand jury room as the probe began.

POLICEMEN HEARD.

Several policemen, including Captain Gallivan of Roxbury Crossing division and Sergeant Michael J. Hartnett of the same station, were on hand to testify, and another witness was James F. O'Connell of Cliff street, Roxbury, who has admitted appearing as a "dummy" defendant for another man, according to the authorities.

Just before the first witness was called, Attorney Frank J. Burke of Roxbury was closeted with District Attorney O'Brien and another lawyer.

IN ROXBURY COURT.

In Roxbury court the cases of Martin Calney, Augustus Alvas, Charles Rins and Francis Carroll were today put over to May 18, pending the the Grand Jury proceedings. Carroll is the name listed on the court records for the defendant who is said to have been impersonated by O'Connell. It is said to be a fictitious name.

Mrs. Marion Pike Cook of Newton, in a petition filed in Middlesex Probate Court, seeks annulment of her marriage to Malcolm H. Cook of Boston, who is now serving a two-and-one-half-year sentence in State prison for an attack upon a minor girl.

Mrs. Cook, in her petition, declares she was deceived by her husband, who said the charge had been brought against him to extort money and had been dismissed. Shortly after their marriage in New York they returned to Newton to live, where her husband was arrested on the girl's charge and sent to jail.

PARIS ACCLAIMS MARION DAVIES

Paris, May 13 (Universal)—Marion Davies' epoch-making success in "Janice Meredith" has created an unprecedented demand for American films in Paris.

The distributors say the Paris theatres now are exhibiting 25 per cent. more American productions than they did a month ago.

The latest spectacular success was achieved at Stella Dallas' premiere, which was attended by the usual first night fashionable crowd. Noticeable among those present was Paris' foremost actress, who is interested in the American interpretation of emotional mother love. She was Yvonne Printemp, Sacha Guitry's talented wife, who will soon make her debut in the United States. She stated after seeing the picture: "The New World leads in everything. Even emotional acting is no longer an exclusive French art."

DISABLED VETS CONCERT

Music featured the semi-monthly entertainment given today under auspices of the Boston Evening American at United States Veterans' Hospital, West Roxbury, for the ex-service men confined there. Although more than seven years have elapsed since the World War ended there are still 270 men at the West Roxbury hospital under treatment.

Two exceptional singers gave of their best today for the "boys." They are Mme. Mabel Cardarelli of Allston, whose lovely dramatic soprano voice thrilled the patients, and Albert Orcutt of Dorchester, who, although 72 years of age, has one of the sweetest tenor voices ever heard at the hospital. Time has not changed it since he sang with Denman Thompson's famous "Old Homestead" company. The accompanists for these singers were Miss Helen Mahler and Mrs. Marr Bumford, both accomplished musicians.

Others on the program were Eddie McGinley, the "Boston Minute-man" in songs and stories; Howard Kolz, Ella Sylvia and Blanche Raselle. The last three are playing at a local vaudeville theatre this week. The two women of the trio are proteges of Mme. Sembrich and Mrs. Charles M. Schwab. Lillian Morton, also playing at a Boston theatre this week helped drive the "boys" blues away.

Luxurious limousines, the services of which were contributed by Manager Frederick of the Boston Pilot Company, conveyed to artists to and from the hospital. The performance of these fine cars, in traffic was flawless, all the artists agreed.

15TH TAUBMAN STORE OPENS

Taubman is the new name in the Hall of Fame of American retail business.

The phenomenal rise of the three yet youthful brothers from Manhattan's crowded East Side, and $200 to millions in five years breaks on to Boston's notice tomorrow with the opening of the fifteenth Taubman store, a finely appointed establishment in the Back Bay.

Behind their success lies a story of poverty and hardship overcome by brains, energy and vision. In 1921 Henry G. Samuel and Athur Taubman opened a small vulcanizing shop on $200 capital at Greensburg, Pa.

Within a year they visioned their big idea—chain store merchandising of automotive accessories, with newspaper advertising as their most powerful sales influence, and service and satisfaction to the customer their insistent policy.

Four years later these East Side boys, the oldest of whom is thirty-five years, were directing a corporation, operating fourteen stores scattered throughout New York, Pennsylvania and Maryland.

Five thousand articles of automobile equipment, parts and accessories, each sold under a guarantee of satisfaction to the purchaser, are handled in a Taubman store.

The new Boston store is in the heart of the automotive district, at No. 165 Massachusetts avenue.

Its interior is beautifully decorated in soft tones of red, gold and black.

Sydney Lemberger, a well known pioneer in the automotive industry, is the manager.

HOPI SNAKE DANCE IN CAPITAL SATURDAY

Washington, May 14.—Hopi Indian snake dancers led by the head medicine man will do their tribal dance on the Capitol plaza Saturday morning. One hundred and fifty bull snakes which the dancers will tickle with turkey feathers and than wrap around their bodies, will add zest to the show. But it is to be a serious performance, not a circus stunt, according to Senator Cameron of Arizona, the State where the Hopi Indians hail from. The purpose of the exhibition, he says, is to demonstrate to Congress the sincerity and tribal solemnity of the well known Hopi snake dance.

FILENE TALKS TO GERMANS

After a visit to Harvard University School of Business Administration today, the 34 German merchants in Boston, after a tour of American cities to study methods of merchandising employed here, will leave for New York, where they will take passage for home Tuesday.

The German merchants were advised by Edward A. Filene, in an address at the Boston Chamber of Commerce, to establish a chain of department stores. He advocated a chain of about 30 stores and detailed the advantages of buying power under such a system.

An era of super competition in all commodities is near, the Boston merchant told them, and can only be met successfully by mass production.

COALITION FOR NEW FARM BILL

Washington, May 14 (Universal).—A coalition of administration Republicans and conservative Democrats is being formed to kill the Haugen farm subsidy bill and to push through Congress a combination of the Tincher and Aswell bills.

Such a composite bill, it is believed, will meet with the approval of President Coolidge, whereas he is squarely opposed to the Haugen measure.

Aswell's bill, which has been introduced in the Senate by Senator Curtis of Kansas, Republican floor leader, would provide $10,000,000 to be loaned by the government in establishing a national system of co-operative marketing associations. An amendment will be offered by Aswell to add $10,000,000 to be loaned for the purpose of marketing surplus crops, he announced.

The House voted to adjourn today until Monday, thus forcing a final show-down on farm relief legislation over until next week.

SHORT TERM FOR GESSLER

Berlin, May 14 (I.N.S.).—There are serious doubts whether Herr Gessler, acting chancellor, will accept an invitation to form a permanent cabinet, as it is doubtful whether he could control a majority in the Reichstag.

Gessler has the backing of General Von Seeckt, a factor which might make him acceptable to the allied powers, and arouses the more liberal and anti-militarist factions in the Reichstag.

The Reichswehr is giving full support to Gessler, thereby lessening any dangers from attempted coups.

FREE NEGRO HELD FOR MURDER OF BREINER

Detroit, May 14 (A.P.).—After four hours' deliberation, a jury found Henry Sweet, negro, not guilty of a charge of murder in connection with the slaying of Leon E. Breiner last September. The trial was the second growing out of a race disturbance in the eastern part of the city when Breiner was wounded fatally when volleys were shot from a house occupied by Ossian H. Sweet, negro doctor.

Ossian Sweet was tried on a charge of murder and the hearing was declared a mistrial after the jury had disagreed.

3 KILLED, 1 HURT, IN AUTO-FREIGHT CRASH

The dead—Mrs. Bessie Mullen, Mason Jones, Frank Martin. Jones and Martin were seniors at Ohio Northern University.

FRIEDA ADMITS DIVORCE PLANS

Paris, May 14 (Universal).—Frieda Hempel, former Metropolitan Opera House coloratura soprano, interviewed by Universal Service, gave confirmation to reports that she intended to stay in Paris from four to six weeks in order to obtain a divorce from her husband, William R. Kahn, wealthy silk manufacturer. She said:

"It is true that I'll probably get a divorce while in Paris. Nevertheless, my lawyer has not filed any papers as yet and it would be most premature for anybody, including myself, to presume to discuss my remarrying. I have absolutely no plans."

She denied that there was any possibility of her marrying August Heckscher, 75-year-old philanthropist, of New York.

Kahn Verifies Reports of Wife's Divorce Suit

Chicago, May 14.—Madame Frieda Hempel, famous prima donna, has gone to Paris to institute divorce proceedings against William R. Kahn, her husband, Mr. Kahn verified reports today.

Incompatibility was given as the reason for the divorce. He said there never had been any other man or woman between them.

"Evidently I failed to make her happy. This I regret, as no woman who has brought such happiness to millions throughout the world should herself be unhappy."

In discussing the report that Madame Hempel is to wed August Heckscher, Mr. Kahn said:

"I do not know anything about it. But whether she remarries or not, I shall always keep her in my memory as a woman of beauty, charm and grace, of beautiful voice and magnificent art."

STATE POLICE PROBE BLAZE IN MALDEN

The state police will investigate a fire of suspicious origin on the top floor of a vacant apartment house at Beach and Oliver streets, in the Lynden section of Malden. The blaze was discovered a few minutes after midnight, and by the time that firemen arrived flames were pouring from several windows. The fire was confined to the top floor of the six-apartment building, with damage of about $3,000. Benjamin Movitz owns the property.

KING ALBERT REVIEWS THE RICHMOND BLUES

Brussels, May 14 (I.N.S.).—The Richmond Blues and the Governor's Footguard passed in review here today before King Albert, before the royal palace, while crowds of Belgians assembled to cheer them. The militiamen formed a hollow square and the king entered it and conversed at length with the officers.

"ZIP—THE WHAT-IS-IT?", LAST OF THE FAMOUS P. T. BARNUM HOAXES—He was neither more nor less than William Henry Johnson, of New Jersey, and he never saw the "wilds of Africa!" Vidor To Show Woes of Workmen on Screen

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS
Motion Picture Editor of Universal Service.

LOS ANGELES, May 14.—The next hero to be glorified by King Vidor will not be a dashing, romantic, young Apollo, but a commonplace, hard-working clerk whose one problem in life is to keep his job so that his wife and family will not want for food and shelter.

I can think of no director better qualified to deliver a message than Mr. Vidor and that is why I consider it of great interest that his next picture is an original to be written by John Weer on the economic problems of the American working man.

There are three days more of production work on "Bardleys, the Magnificent." Then King and Johnnie Weer will his themselves to a quiet retreat to work out this great American epic.

Eleanor Boardman is the choice for the feminine lead and while John Gilbert has in the past played only unmarried roles—the sort that appeal to the matinee girls and fatten the box office receipts, Mr. Vidor would very much like to have him for the Weer story. But "The Undying Flame," several others planned for Mr. Gilbert by Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer may interfere. In that case here is a golden opportunity for some aspiring young actor.

John Gilbert

I AM much in the position of the person who says "Uh, huh, I told you so," for E. A. Dupont has confirmed my story that he will direct Pola Negri in her next picture, which may be "Hotel Imperial," or "The Garden of Eden," the choice to be made as soon as Herr Dupont has finished filming "Love Me and the World is Mine," at Universal City.

Pola Negri

On my visit to Universal City Mary Philbin, who has been definitely chosen to play the feminine lead in "L'Homme Qui Rit," (The Man Who Laughs) based on Victor Hugo's Novel, expressed herself as elated that Mr. Dupont will direct her and Jean Hersholt in the Hugo drama.

AND now an additional word about Universal and Mary and Herr Dupont. This is the combination now set up for Mary and Herr Dupont. This is the combination now set up for "Romeo and Juliet," slated to follow "The Man Who Laughs." Everything is set for the Shakespearean play but Romeo. Norman Kerry is out of the running, probably he read what John Barrymore had to say about Romeo's short comings as a lover. And at this moment the choice lies between Andrea Mattori and Raymond Keane both of whom are being considered for the part. Miss Philbin has expressed a wish that Ramon Novarro be conveyed from Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer, but with the program outlined for him that is probably on a par with crying for the moon.

Mary Philbin

WITNESS IN DELINQUENCY CASE PUT UNDER ARREST

Attleboro, May 14.—Summoned to court as a witness in the case of Evelyn Clapp of Easton, charged with delinquency in the juvenile session, Joseph Greene of Burlington, Mass., was placed under arrest by State Detective Francis W. Clemmey and later taken to Taunton for arraignment in court there Friday morning. Two other young men were implicated by statements of Miss Clapp, who was sent to the Lancaster School for Girls.

70-YEAR-OLD MAN SENTENCED AS VAGRANT

A sentence of four months in the House of Correction was imposed on Edward Deane, 70, formerly of Cleveland, Ohio, as a vagrant, by Judge James Parmenter in Municipal Court after listening to a pathetic tale of poverty from the elderly man, who, unable to locate any former friends, was discovered by two Metropolitan policemen Wednesday night about to end his life in the Charles River after he had carefully destroyed all means of identification that he had on his person.

HIGH LYNN CIRCUS FEES ENDS OFFICIAL PASSES

There is much weeping, wailing and general gnashing of teeth in Lynn following the announcement that city officials and policemen will, this year, dig down into their own pockets for the price of circus tickets.

They blame it all on Mayor Bauer for raising the circus license fee to $500, double the old figure. He threatens to boost it to $800 next year.

In retaliation the circus press agent immediately announced the suspension of the entire official free list. If he is to be believed they will effect a considerable saving, even at the increased cost of licenses, for he says that it was the custom to give away between $300 and $400 worth of tickets.

Nantasket Road Closed

The direct route to Nantasket from Bicknell square, North Weymouth and Hingham harbor, will be closed all during the Summer for repairs, it was announced yesterday.

NEWTON MAN PETITIONS FOR CHILDREN'S CUSTODY

Clifford E. Lawrence of Newton, president of the Lawrence Press Corporation, No. 91 Beacon street, Boston, opened a court battle in Middlesex Probate Court for the custody of his two children, Elizabeth, 14, and Hugh, 9 years.

Filing a petition for custody, Lawrence set forth that he is living apart from his wife and he claims the welfare and future happiness of the children are at stake and that they should be awarded to him.

SEIZED STEAMSHIP TO BE AUCTIONED

Tomorrow at noon, the ships Morris, lying at the upper end of Pier No. 4, South Boston Northern avenue, will be sold at public United States marshal to the highest bidder, by order of the federal Court. The vessels are sold under an order of the court for forfeiture to the government because of admissions made by her crew that on two recent occasions they had left an American port without clearance and for the purpose of landing liquor cargoes.

INDIAN SKELETON FOUND IN MAYNARD

Maynard, May 14 (A.P.).—While inspecting recently acquired land here, Angin Lynch unearthed a skeleton thought to be that of an Indian. Old settlers claim this particular territory was inhabited with red men when the village was known as Assabet. The skeleton is in good condition and will be sent to Harvard University.

MAYOR'S DAUGHTER TO CHRISTEN NEW TRAIN

A shower of white blossoms from the hand of Marjorie Nichols, three-year-old daughter of Mayor Nichols, will christen the "Minute Man," new train of the Boston & Maine railroad, on a run from this city to Chicago, before it makes its initial run starting from the North Station at 3 o'clock tomorrow.

Mayor Quinn Boosts Training for Girls

Mayor Edward W. Quinn, of Cambridge, is in favor of Summer camps for girls "if."

"If" the girls and their mothers want them!

"I have been keeping in touch with this discussion in the columns of the Boston Evening American," the Mayor of the University City said today, "and I believe I have been impressed the most by the words of Major General Mark L. Hersey 'A great country needs a great motherhood.'

Mayor Quinn

"About the basic proposition before us, the usefulness of such camps, the good they can do, I do not see any ground for argument. There are scores of private camps in Northern New England and their number is growing every year. This proves, to my way of thinking, first that they have filled a real need of our modern life, and secondly that their population is increasing.

"In addition, there are the Y. W. C. A. camps, and, of course, the Girl Scout camps. Are they a worthy contribution to life in America? Can anyone doubt it?

"Major-General Hersey's suggestion is that we extend the work to the many, that we offer similar opportunities to all girls, to the end that we may 'lessen the whole,' engender and promote the feeling that we are all Americans, and that each of us owes a solemn duty to America.

"I favor the camps if the girls and their mothers want them. And, after eight or nine years in the office of mayor, experience and observation tell me that if there is such a demand for them, if the girls of America and their mothers want Summer training camps, it is safe to say they will be in operation when another Summer rolls around. It is really up to the women! We begin with an excellent idea; the next step is to determine how genuine and how universal is the demand for it. Count me as for the camps if the girls want them."

MANY LOSE LIFE IN HURRICANE

Moscow, May 14 (U.S.S.R.)—Many lives have been lost and millions of dollars' worth of damage has been done by a great hurricane that has whipped the waters of the Azov Sea and the Don River into flood tides, inundating the city of Rostov.

Dispatches from Rostov today said the high ground of the city is littered with bodies of the victims of the hurricane and the flood.

The hurricane arose suddenly and did untold damage, but the greatest catastrophe came when the high winds drove the waters of the Azov Sea over the mouth of the Don River, converting the lower basin of the river into one great stormy sea inundating the city. The Don rose 18 feet in a few hours. The flood is said to be the worst for 25 years. Relief ships have been ordered to Rostov.

FIRED SHOPMEN WILL APPEAL

Discharged Boston & Maine shopmen who fought a losing fight for reinstatement with officials of the road are to carry their case to the Railroad Wage Board at Chicago for final judgment.

Announcement of the appeal was made after T. H. Condon, vice-president of the American Federation of Railroad Workers, received notification that General Manager B. R. Pollock of the railroad had sustained the dismissals after a hearing was given the men.

The shopmen were charged with falsely representing conditions at the Billerica shops in letters to the U. S. Department of Labor and to Federal conciliators sent by the department.

DR. MARSH INAUGURAL EXERCISES TOMORROW

Delegates from 154 other educational institutions will witness the formal induction of Dr. Marsh into office. Three events will mark Saturday's program: the inauguration at 10:15 in Symphony Hall, a reception at 1 o'clock in Hotel Somerset, and a luncheon at 1:30 in the Somerset, at which three university presidents, Attorney-General Jay R. Benton and other prominent persons will speak.

RAPS MELLON ON 'REAL BEER'

Washington, May 14 (A.P.).—Assistant Secretary Andrews of the Treasury, in charge of prohibition enforcement, was told today by Representative La Guardia, Progressive-Socialist, New York, that it "seems to be common knowledge" in Pittsburgh that the Hazelwood Brewing Company of that city is making "real beer."

The New York Representative, in a letter to the dry chief, added:

"It seems strange to me that what is general knowledge in Pittsburgh of a flagrant and brazen violation of law is not known to the prohibition enforcement officials, or, if known, entirely ignored by them.

"I am sure that if the honorable Secretary of the Treasury, who, I understand will be in Pittsburgh tomorrow, will make inquiry he, too, will learn of the prosperous activities of this particular brewery.

"A mere casual inquiry, perhaps, among some of the very gentlemen who may have platform or reserved seats at the meeting Friday, may disclose information valuable for the enforcement of the law entrusted to the Treasury Department."

COOLIDGE GOING TO VIRGINIA

Washington, May 14 (I.N.S.)—President and Mrs. Coolidge will sail today on the Mayflower for Yorktown, Va., where the President will speak.

It is his first journey south of the Mason and Dixon line since his White House incumbency. The occasion of his address, to be delivered at historic William and Mary college is the 150th anniversary of the adoption by the Virginia Assembly of a resolution instructing the Virginia delegation in the Continental Congress to advocate a Declaration of Independence from Great Britain.

The party will include Senator and Mrs. Swanson, Senator Glass, Representative and Mrs. Montague, Governor Byrd, Colonel Henry W. Anderson, Senator and Mrs. Bingham, Connecticut, and Secretary Sanders.

SUMMERWEIGHT SHOES BECOMING NECESSITY

Summerweight shoes in addition to the straw hat.

And for the same purpose—maximum warm weather comfort.

That is the dictum of the shoe adviser.

Summerweight shoes appear mainly half a pound lighter than Winter brogues and boots, and are swept into a wider vogue each year according to shoe manufacturers and retailers.

The summerweight shoe season opens tomorrow. The man wearing those of the heavy type oxford and high boots will be as much out of place as a man wearing a mask out in Winter sans the laughing spectators in the side streets.

It is logical, the council for comfort would have them, that one decides first on hats and then on shoes to be worn with them, then underwear and, if desired, lighter fabrics, as it is as logical for him to change from heavy shoes to lighter in weight ones.

The new summerweight shoes, although lighter than standard Winter shoes, wear as well because special processes give long wearing factory service and much more comfort, say the makers.

Ranger at $7

We challenge you to find a better value in merchandise than you'll find in our "Ranger" shoe at $7. For at this moderate figure it gives you a shoe with true Thayer McNeil style, fit and wear.

Come in and try on a pair to go with your new spring suit.

Legislature Lays Pension Bill Aside

On the plea that it was filed too late for proper consideration by the cities and towns of the Commonwealth, the House of Representatives has referred the Casey-Thomas-Boston Evening American hero pension bill to the next annual session.

With the wave greased by their efforts of the past month and encouraged by the widespread and enthusiastic endorsements of pensions in all sections of the province, the bill may be resolved to renew their fight in the Legislature next year.

WON SUPPORT DAILY.

The measure has supporters daily in both branches of the Legislature because of its humane and fair nature, carpenter and the gentleman from Ashfield, it matters not, possess confidence that it would have been carried if debated on the floor of the House, but Speaker John of Fall as chairman of the rules committee, and certain of his colleagues prevented that by delaying action on the measure for exactly twenty-seven days before voting not to suspend rules.

The House Journal tells the story as follows:

"By Mr. Jones of Nantucket, for the Committee on Rules, that the 127th Joint Rule be not suspended on the petition of John Thomas and fourteen others, that cities and towns be authorized to pay annuities to families of members of the police and fire departments killed in the performance of duty. Considered under a suspension of Rule 127 on motion of Mr. Dickerson of Winchester. The question being on suspending the 127th Joint Rule and the petition was referred to the next annual session."

CLEVERLY SIDETRACKED.

House action on the vote of the committee was done so cleverly that many members were outside about the time the roll was called, thinking the bill was to be given a favorable report. Only those in the immediate vicinity of the House knew what was going on, and even they were not aware that the measure was being sidetracked.

As the vote was announced and the committee went out of existence, several members who had signed the petition to report the measure favorably, rushed to the clerk's desk to change their votes, but were too late.

The committee is made up of Speaker John C. Hull, chairman, Leominster; Martin Hays, Boston; Leverett Saltonstall Newton, Louis L. Green, Cambridge; Michael F. Shaw, Revere; Gustave Everberg, Woburn, Henry Achin, Jr., Lowell; Francis E. Cassidy, Webster; Shirley Washburn, Worcester; Fred D. Briggs, Springfield; Victor F. Jewett, Lowell; Edward J. Kelley, Worcester; Arthur W. Jones, Nantucket.

Pension Bill Praised by State Official

By GEORGE E. CURRAN,
Member Governor's Council

I wonder if the citizens of the Boston Evening American realize what has been done in such a vigorous and efficient manner in advocacy of the bill to provide the full salary of deceased firemen and police men for the dependents of those who lose their lives in the performance of duty.

Our custom in the past in this respect has been nothing short of indifference, neglect and abandonment. When a police officer or fireman gives his life in the discharge of his duty, his dependents become a burden on the community, and every principle of right reason and justice, and every principle of our common community, made of government and of society.

"Faithful unto death" has been from time immemorial the greatest tribute that human lips can utter. Too often are these men called upon to lay down their own lives and all that life means for the protection of life and property.

Greater love than this hath no man that he give his life for his friend. That is the supreme sacrifice. Why leave the spirit of such fine men unrecognized? Silver plate and gratitude for this I think is a legacy foolish and useless.

For a number of years I have had the happiness of assisting in the gathering of funds for the dependents of every one of these heroes and the work has been a source of great satisfaction and comfort to me, but why should these fine people, bereft of the bread-winner, be obliged to look to private charity for help, while a rich municipality in whose cause these heroes gave their lives, looks on in seeming indifference?

The Boston Evening American is doing a splendid work in awakening the Legislature and the public conscience to appreciation of this rank injustice, and its best reward will be in the knowledge of a good duty fully and nobly done.

HOSPITAL IS DEFENDED BY KELLEHER

Superintendent Defies Probers and Charges Made by Three Nurses

Aroused by charges of cruelty and neglect made by three former nurses of the Cambridge Tuberculosis Hospital, Superintendent Simon B. Kelleher today threw open the institution for inspection by the public and branded the accusations as baseless.

The three nurses who announced that they quit because of conditions at the hospital were discharged because they were "troublemakers," Dr. Kelleher said.

He emphatically denied that Miss Margaret Conlon, matron, was ever abusive to children under her care, as charged.

The charges were made in writing to the Board of Health.

They were made after a row between the nurses and the matron. The Misses Anna Shields, Catherine Shields, Laura Wilson and Mary Chester left the hospital. When the three first named returned for their trunks an altercation with the matron occurred and a policeman was summoned to eject them. It was stated.

Three of the nurses in their complaint charged that vermin runs over what is served to patients, that the Fleming treatment of castor oil was administered to children and that they were doused with cold water and whipped with a fly swatter.

William Lawlor, interne, charged with neglect, was praised by Dr. Kelleher as the "best interne we have ever had." The girls were not graduate nurses but nurses' attendants, Dr. Kelleher said.

BRING THEATRE TO KIDDIES IN INSTITUTIONS

Boston Evening American and Metropolitan Combine to Give Happiness

When the Mountain wouldn't go to Mohammed, Mohammed had to go to the Mountain.

But for the sake of the orphan and other children in institutions of Boston, the Boston Evening American, in conjunction with the Metropolitan Theatre, is going to bring the Mountain to Mohammed!

Because it is impossible for the children in the many institutions around Greater Boston to visit the Movie Houses the Boston Evening American is going to bring one to them.

For some time the plight of these children has been a matter of discussion between executives of the Metropolitan Theatre and of the Boston Evening American. It was thought that in their respective positions among the important institutions of Boston they should assume some responsibility for those who could not care for themselves.

The question was how to give some entertainment to the little ones at their convenience—and what was best for them.

A consideration of the attractions arranged for the Metropolitan's program, showed that for the week of May 23 the schedule called for Douglas MacLean in his latest comedy "THAT'S MY BABY." In this picture, MacLean has made one of those joyous comedies of the sort that all ages from 6 to 60 enjoy and understand. MacLean is one of the foremost fun makers of the screen. He seems to grasp before completing his scenario the proper psychological twist to his comedy situations and romance to get the most universal appeal. And in the case of "THAT'S MY BABY," with a good deal of fun centering around a little bundle of perpetual mischief of the age of four, it was thought the ideal entertainment for the children invited.

In conference it was agreed to offer this hilarious motion picture to the children's institutions.

Thad C. Barrows, chief projectionist at the Metropolitan Theatre is completing physical arrangements for sending the film of "THAT'S MY BABY" to various institutions. He is figuring transportation arrangements and is also obtaining the projection machine and screen and the projectionists who will visit the various institutions as soon as the schedule is determined upon. The plan will be to show the picture from day to day at all these institutions where youngsters can not get away from their headquarters to visit theatres. The "THAT'S MY BABY" Editor of the Boston Evening American is now working on the schedule of visits and will make further announcements tomorrow.

DOUGLAS MacLEAN
In "That's My Baby," will be seen when the film is shown in various children's institutions about Boston.

GOODWIN HALTS PAY-RAISE PLAN

Registrar of Motor Vehicles Frank A. Goodwin today discouraged any further attempts to secure an increase in his salary of $5,500 per year.

When Governor Fuller vetoed the legislative act which established a minimum of $6,000 for the registrar's salary, it ended whatever interest he had in a larger salary.

"It has been called to my attention," said Mr. Goodwin, "that many of my friends in the Legislature are preparing a petition requesting Commissioner William F. Williams to increase my salary.

"I do not know how I ever can thank sufficiently the many loyal friends in the Legislature, both House and Senate, who have expressed their confidence in me by their votes, but I hope they will not send any petition to Mr. Williams.

"I am not particularly interested in the $1,000 and all my friends may rest assured that so long as I am in the position I shall give my best regardless of salary."

2,000-YEAR-OLD MUSIC FOR HOLY CROSS PLAY

Worcester, May 14—The simple, plaintive chants of Ancient Greece will be heard for the first time in 1,000 years at the production of Euripides "Hecuba" in the Greek theatre on the Holy Cross Stadium on the afternoon of Sunday, May 30.

This music, which was thought lost for all time, has been specially reconstructed for the production of "Hecuba" at Holy Cross by Prof. John H. Marshall professor of Music at Holy Cross and head of the school of music at Boston University, working in collaboration with Prof. Joseph V. O'Brien, professor of Greek literature at Holy Cross.

The play will be presented on a specially-designed stage, the replica of the original upon which the play was first presented in Athens in 425 B. C., the plans having been drawn by John J. Smith, an seventeen-year-old freshman at Holy Cross. Designing of stage and costumes has required extensive research work on the part of the faculty and students here at the college, but those who attend the performances are assured an exact reproduction of the original presented more than twenty centuries ago.

Geldert pleaded that as a result of a fall from a bicycle, he frequently suffers lapses of memory, during which time he unconsciously assumes a Dr. Jekyll character, stealing things and then leaving them behind as the spell wears off. He asked that he be put in jail and kept there, fearing that if released the urge to steal would return.

No more, no less... but Quaker Oats has the flavor

THE difference in breakfast oats is in their flavor. The price mostly is the same.

Millions demand the Quaker brand because of its toasty, wonderful flavor. For flavor is the important point in food.

Some $5 years were spent perfecting that famous Quaker flavor. Once you taste it, you are spoiled for ordinary oats.

Quaker milling, too, retains much of the "bulk" of oats. And that makes laxatives less often needed. Protein, carbohydrates and vitamines and "bulk" are thus combined to make Quaker Oats an excellently balanced ration.

A Timid Country Bride Comes to Boston and Falls Prey to a Social Hyena

"Mr. Manning will accord you the privilege of seeking the legal separation he desires," said the lawyer to Charlotte. Posed by Mary Ann Dentler and E. L. McLaurie. Photo by Charles G. Snyder.

Dave Manning, Boston engineer, who has piled up a fortune, meets and weds Charlotte Connolly, daughter of a college professor. He is verging on middle age, she is in her early twenties. They come to Boston to live. Dick and Phyllis Fenway are Dave's intimate friends in Boston social life. Phyllis is given Charlotte to introduce to Boston. Charlotte is amused to city ways. She meets Phil Van Alan, admirer of Phyllis. A man friend of Van Alan entertains them. Leila, flapper daughter of David Manning, thinks Charlotte a mere kid.

Charlotte meets with an accident and also meets Lawrence Hill. He is very good-looking and sympathetic and presses his attentions on the young wife. She, lonesome, fascinated, and, to tell the truth, not a little proud of a conquest to exhibit Phyllis and the ladies of her set, finally makes him her "tame cat," as Phyllis calls Phil Van Alan.

Then one night, when Manning is presumed to be in Chicago, Hill forces himself into Charlotte's presence. Dave returns suddenly and finds Hill, who passes himself off as a physician, called by Charlotte. Manning appears to believe the story of Charlotte.

CHAPTER V.

DURING the days that followed, Charlotte went about in a haze of seeming doubt.

Did Manning suspect the ruse she and Lawrence Hill had practiced upon him? That was the question which haunted and terrified her.

When he had reported to the room that night after seeing Doctor Lawrence" to the door he had acted perfectly naturally, concerned apparently only for her and the next day, and the day after and thereafter, she felt or thought she felt him watching her, keeping her closely with grave, inscrutable eyes.

Had scraps of gossip already reached him, linking her name with Lawrence Hill? Had it come to him to put two and two together in the face of that filmsy subterfuge, the sickness of the maid and the illness of the baby?

That was the thought that went round and round in a torturing circle in her sick mind.

Once he asked her casually:

"Where did you say that you heard of that strange doctor you called in? Where did you say he had his office?"

And she answered calmly though with inward panic, for she had already ascertained from the telephone directory that there was actually a Doctor Lawrence with offices in the Back Bay.

But suppose Manning called to see the physician and found him an old, bearded man! Suppose he

FORD BUYS SCHOOL STONES

Now He Owns Part of Building to Which the Lamb Followed Mary

Henry Ford, well - known shopper and man-about-antique-shops, purchased three stones in Sterling and today the town was all excited over the transaction, claiming that someone had made a flivver, but it wasn't Henry, who makes hundreds of them every day.

The stones crowned two corner stone of the country school attended by little Mary Sawyer, immortalized in "Mary Had a Little Lamb," which verse you may have had.

In the opinion of Sterling residents, the rub comes through the fact that Ford purchased the three historic stones for only $5 and, even if they have lain around unnoticed for, to these citizens, they are worth more than half a dollar.

What remains of the old school house that had such a fascination for Mary Had a Little Lamb" is in a state of ruin, and will be razed in the near future, it is said. Only three walls remain.

Sterling was willing and set the price at $5 when it was told that the property, which has been in the Sawyer family for many years, would be razed, for only then could the stones be had.

Today, according to residents of Sterling, it would appear that the purchase was the best deal ever made, for there are some that claim the strange stones themselves were to be made the cornerstone of a new school to be built at Newport, N. H., which town had a say in being the scene of Mary's school attendance and the rest of the lamb.

WHAT IS HELL?

I HOPE I shall offend no one's feelings when I declare I cannot believe in a hell where a great grinning devil sits boiling disobedient humans in a huge black cauldron!

There is a glorious fresco of this unreconstructed gentleman on the walls of the Campo Santo at Pisa. As a child I was taken to Pisa to see its historic beauties—but I confess that the colossal devil stewing infidels in his pot fascinated me beyond words and that I paid small attention to the architectural wonders and art treasures upon all sides. There are gruesome details about that devil which I never forgot, but which good [illegible] and considerations for my readers' feelings forbid my describing them.

Although even as a child I did not believe in such a hell, my childish mind was rather horribly impressed by that Pisa Satan. Some thirty years later I went again to have a look at him and, although he seemed a shade paler, there he still sat in his grim jobsbut I believe in him still less than I had as a child.

No, hell decidedly does not exist in that form any more than paradise is a place where good people sit harp-dressed, upon damp clouds and play golden harps. We carry our heaven and our hell about with us—within us. We create them by our thoughts and by our acts, by the way we live this present life.

If we look upon this life as a passage leading to a better existence, a period of transition in the eternal, never-resting evolution of things from chaos upward, we shall find great consolation.

To me, that which we call Soul is the divine spark implanted in us, to draw us upward, onward, away from human needs toward fuller growth. Does thinking of a fiery hell make us live better lives? No! Hold rather to the thought that Opportunity awaits; not Punishment.

As a man progresses toward the grace his body grows more and more fragile until it becomes all but useless. All our striving, therefore, should be to strengthen our spirit, in proportion as the flesh weakens.

Too many neglect this by the immediate demeaning of what they are losing here upon this earth, which in spite of all their efforts they can not retain! Is not the thought of hell the very cause of many people's fear of leaving this life? They fear some thing worse, whereas I think whatever we enter will be better, and give us greater chance for happiness and service.

All this has come to me clearly lately, through sorrow and bitter disappointments. With grief comes thought, wisdom, understanding, and finally a Faith that is clear and comforting.

My faith is firm that hell is entirely of our own making both here and hereafter, and that the elimination of fear and weakness will make our next evolution possible

SEEK 3 WHO SET CHURCH AFIRE

Three incendiaries who set fire to the Broadway Baptist Church, Cambridge, were being sought today by the police. The men were seen running away from the building when the blaze was discovered by neighbors. Prompt work by firemen prevented destruction of the church, a wooden structure.

Papers and kindling were found on the south side of the church where the fire started. Rev. Austin T. Kempton, pastor, said it was the third attempt within three years to burn the building. Numerous attempts to fire buildings in the vicinity have been made during the same period, he said.

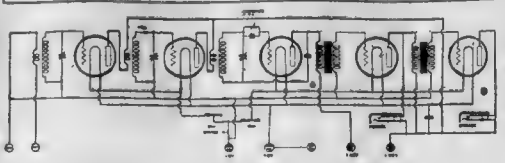
THE FRESHMAN HOOKUP



Many requests have come in to the Radio Editor for the Freshman Masterpiece hook up. The set comprises two stages of tuned, self-neutralized radio frequency amplification, non-regenerative detector and two stages of transformer-coupled audio frequency amplification. Three controls are used for tuning and will all read alike, with the additional advantage of being able to tune to the same dialing when one wishes to retune to a station which has already been logged.

FRESHMAN SET IS POPULAR HOOKUP

Charles Freshman was the first radio manufacturer to literally "flood the country" with a hookup. He introduced a set of units, which could be assembled by anyone.

HOW TO BUILD THE SET.

Instructions are given herewith for putting together one of these sets.

Mount all necessary units on the panel, also the base board. Lay out all sockets, binding post strip and transformers on the base board with the idea in mind of short leads in wiring, and screw them down securely. Test are now ready for the wiring in which great care should be taken to keep all grid leads away from the panel and all plate leads away from the panel and the grid and their wires well separated. There are not two pieces for connecting the elements of all five tubes the same, but on account of the selectivity and wide tuning frequency values of the primary and the secondary coils, either the detector and the audio frequency tubes.

Be sure to follow the wiring diagram exactly, as one wrong connection will throw the entire set out of balance, thereby losing its main factor of non-neutralization. When soldering, it would be best to use as little flux as possible, thus eliminating the possibility of excessive flux running around and causing leakage between the more connections. See that all "A" and "B" batteries are fully charged and in perfect condition. Poor volume receptions is usually caused by run down or faulty batteries.

CHECK THE WIRING.

The wiring should be checked back on each step by going over each wire on the diagram with a red or blue pencil after you have convinced yourself of its being in the correct place. After finishing this check up, a glance at the diagram will show whether all wires have connected or not.

First connect the storage battery to the posts marked A minus and A plus. See that the tubes light when pulling out the filament switch, after which connect the "B" battery to the respective binding posts. Then connect the aerial and ground to the set and it is ready for operation.

LIST OF PARTS.

While the parts listed below can be substituted with discretion, they are recommended to the layman who is hesitant in choosing his own parts. They have been tested and approved for use in this receiver.

Three Freshman tuned radio frequency units.

Five Jiffy sockets.

One Jiffy binding post strip.

One mi-amold .0005 grid condenser.

Two Mignon audio transformers, type 607 mi-amold fixed condenser.

One .006 mi-amold fixed condenser.

One D. M. S. switch cut-out.

Two Jiffy 10-ohm rheostats (one mi-amold grid leak, two megohm).

FIRST RADIO SEANCE PROVES FAILURE

"Spirit voices" do not go well with such mundane things as microphones. That again is proved the age old conflict between belief and science.

Indeed the first spiritualistic seance over broadcast did not prove a success. This interesting experiment conducted by WBBM the Silvertone Air Warner Air Theatre in Chicago, attracted the attention of thousands of listeners-in.

The station was literally swamped with telephone, telegraph and other forms of requests for copies to be procured.

In conducting the seance the Air Theatre did it only in the light of an experimental demonstration and disclaimed further responsibility

They Taste oven-baked

That is because Heinz beans are oven-baked. No other way of preparing beans can bring out the full, rich, nut-like flavor. And, what is more, oven baking makes them easy to digest and most nutritious.

So, ask for Heinz Oven-Baked Beans. Let the label be your guide. Beans that are not oven-baked cannot be labeled baked.

Oven baking takes longer—but it makes you remember longer how really good Heinz Baked Beans are.

Radio Queries

Q—W. S., Melrose. My set is a one tube Grebe. Recently the copper shielding came off the back of the panel, and I don't dare to attempt its replacement. There doesn't seem to be any difference in the operation of the set. What would you recommend? Can I cut off the loose shielding with a pair of snips?

A—It will be all right to cut off the loose shielding, provided no circuits are connected through it. Some fans make use of the shielding for a common ground or battery connection. In this case there must be a connection through the shield from one end of the set to the other, although loose edges may be trimmed off without danger.

WALKER CUP PLAYERS SUFFER FINANCIAL REVERSER

TEAM HIT BY HEAVY EXPENSES

Thousand-Dollar Allowance Dwindles Before Hotel Bills and Other Items

By ROBERT HARLOW,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

London, May 14.—The American Walker Cup team is finding that the high cost of living in England is putting a decided crimp in the thousand dollars each player was allowed to expense by the United States Golf Association.

The players drew $1,000 for expenses and had $400 left for incidentals when they arrived but these items mounted in an amazing rate.

Because of the strike affecting the railroads, the players have been forced to motor the entire distance from one match to another. Some days it has been a matter of hundreds of miles. Then, too, the players have been forced to live at the best hotels and the bills have been astounding. Following the match at Sandwich, Mass., when the team checked out of the London hotel Jesse Sweetser, Chick Evans and Bobby Jones had to pay $70 for a three days' stay.

In the Lancashire match the players had to motor 200 miles to Southport, where they had to stay overnight. Then they had to motor back to Liverpool for the match there.

After the match at Liverpool the team motored to Prestwick, Scotland, for the Scottish match, and the day before the match Jones, Evans and Sweetser played a practice round over the course. Fees of the caddies for the practice round were $2.50 each. Then the players had to motor back to Prestwick for the match.

At the Lancashire match Jones and Evans had to pay $2.50 each for caddies. Fees of the caddies for the Walker Cup matches at Sandwich were $2.50 each.

Then there is the matter of tips. Jones and Evans had to tip the caddies at the Lancashire match $2.50 each. Then they had to tip the caddies at the Walker Cup matches at Sandwich $2.50 each.

BINGHAM CALLS WATTERS KING OF HALF-MILERS

THINK THAT SOAPY CAN BREAK 1:53

$80 Has Long Been Feature of I. C. 4 A. Meets; Dohm First to Break 2 Mins.

By WILLIAM J. BINGHAM
Harvard University Athletic Director

When Dick Floyd directs the half-milers to their marks at the I. C. A. A. A. A. Golden Anniversary meet at the Harvard Stadium, May 29, more than a few "old timers" will think back over the thrills that this event produced in their day. Perhaps they will recall Goodwin, thrice winner in the '80s, or Hollister, three times winner in the '90s, or the great John Paul Jones or the greater Ted Meredith.

There will be others who will reflect what might have been had the first quarter been run a little faster or had they sprinted a little sooner. But their races have all been run and they form the history that makes the "Mile" one of the most interesting of championship events.

The half mile was on the program at the first annual meeting of the I. C. A. A. A. A. held in Saratoga, N. Y., July 21, 1876. It is one of eight events which have been run continuously for fifty years. The slowest time was recorded in 1887, when G. M. Hammond of Princeton broke the tape in 2:10¼, after winning the quarter mile in 54 seconds, and the fastest time—1:53—was run by J. E. Meredith of Pennsylvania in 1916, after winning a 47 2-5 second quarter mile.

DOHM SETS FAST PACE.

The first man to break two minutes in the half mile was W. C. Dohm of Princeton, who ran 1:57 1-5 in 1890. Evan Hollister of Harvard was the only man to run under 1:57 at any of the I. C. A. A. A. A. meets held during the nineteenth century. Meredith has the distinction of holding the record for the longest span of years. The only man who threatened the mark was George Marsters of Georgetown, whose winning time in 1908 was 1:53 3-10.

Yet the history of the I. C. A. A. A. A. half mile is by no means written in figures alone. One of the most thrilling races, that of 1895, was won in two minutes. E. Kilpatrick of Union College and Evan Hollister of Harvard were the outstanding competitors that year. Kilpatrick had been hailed as the greatest half-miler of the century, and with justification, because in the Summer of 1895 he lowered the world's record in the "880" to 1:52 1-5.

At Berkeley Oval, however, Kilpatrick learned that a first-rate half-miler can be defeated in comparatively slow time. Hollister was capable of a hurricane finish, whereas Kilpatrick had to cover the first quarter-mile at a rapid pace to get a fast tiger.

One of Hollister's teammates was Herbert C. Lakin, who was a good judge of pace and who could time himself within a fifth of a second at any distance between the quarter and half-mile. Lakin was instructed to run the first quarter in one minute and the watches read exactly sixty seconds when he flashed past the quarter-mile post.

Anyone who has ever run the half-mile knows that—fast time for the race depends on that first quarter-mile. Coming into the home-stretch, Hollister, with a beautiful "lift," rushed past Kilpatrick and won the race in two minutes.

Will new history be made in the 1926 half mile? Meredith maintains that Watters of Harvard cannot break 1:53 because he has never run a quarter-mile under 50 seconds. Two years ago Watters looked better than 1:53 to me. I still think he is the best half miler in America today.

New Chicago Ring Solons Silent

New York, May 14—Members of the Illinois Boxing Commission, here to say Hello to the New York boards, are not talking much. They have no news to give out. Recently, at a meeting in Chicago, they agreed to furnish no statements or interviews after a session of the board. They had heard how the New York solons all had every day so many questions and decided the best way to avoid criticism was to "put on the muffler."

Chairman O. Huncke said that he had nothing to say. He declined to commit himself on whether or not the board would vote for decisions or no decision. On the request of the New York board for co-operation, Huncke also was silent.

INSIDE GOLF
By CHESTER B. HORTON

The approaching season in golf gives all you enthusiasts opportunity for study of advanced golf technique. With this in mind, we might delve into a point in the swing that I always have developed with advanced pupils, and you can try it out in basement or attic courses. It has to do with the little fingers, and you'd be surprised to know what tremendous importance their action has in the swing. All par shooters know what to do with these fingers, and do it. Few ordinary golfers do. The little fingers have more strength as wrappers, than either of the other fingers. How this effects your swing will be explained in subsequent articles.

PENN TO FACE DARTMOUTH'S BALL CLUB

By GEORGE GRIMM

University of Pennsylvania baseball team, champion of Hampshire, will play its most important game of the season when it tackles Dartmouth and Pennsylvania are reported.

It is a great game for Harvard fans Saturday when the Big Green nine faces the Quakers. Both teams are said to be primed for clashes, while the fielding of the Dartmouth outfit is superior to that of the Penn nine.

University of Pennsylvania followers will rely on the pitching of Captain Howell Long, a southpaw, to stem the Dartmouth batters. Carter, the best hurler on the Green team, will take the mound and face his rivals on the Red and White diamond.

Captain Lefevre, coming from the south on the Pennsylvania S, will start off at New Haven to afternoon to play the Yale nine. He will then race for New Haven where he will cross to the Hub to meet the Crimson nine on Soldiers Field, Boston, Friday and Saturday.

Yale also, had some opposition from Charlie Mecum's baseball boys and it will be a toss-up as to whether coach Joe Wood of the Blue nine will send Hopkins or Linnell to the mound. What a 1 is striving this way for across the Boston College team will secure first position in the Eastern League race, nine at Brooklyn today.

Coach Ken Nash of Tufts Universities will journey with his Jumbo nine to Vermont and tackle the Middlebury nine.

GLENNA COLLETT SAILS FOR HOME SATURDAY

Paris, May 14 (I.N.S.)—Glenna Collett, American golf champion, who hopes of winning new golfing honors, will sail for New York tomorrow on the Aquitania. Although having played a single golf match this trip, Miss Collett stacks it against the British Women's Champion was called and Miss Collett found it impossible to play golf. She has been visiting Paris since last Sunday.

M.I.T. Cornell Meet to Be Closer Than in '25

By STED CHANDLER

It will be difficult for local track fans to decide where to go tomorrow. With Harvard and Dartmouth, Boston College and Holy Cross, and Cornell and M. I. T. all engaged in dual meets in the immediate vicinity, plenty of excitement is offered.

Especial interest is attached to the latter meet inasmuch as the Cornellians performed the somewhat unusual feat of appearing in two places in one week. Tomorrow afternoon we will give a line on what to expect a fortnight hence.

Cornell won last year 84 2-3 to 40 1-3. That time the score should be much closer. It has been figured as near as 77 to 68, although in all likelihood, M. I. T. coach, claims to see a few additional points in the offing. At any rate, the Engineers will have a much more powerful team on the field than they did last year.

Three of last years winners will be on hand to attempt a repetition of their victories and the chances in every case looks good for success. Captain Hank Hedlund, M. I. T. pacer, claims to have come a long in fine shape in the pole vault, while Wiebe and Brodsky, in the broad jump and shot put respectively, look like winners.

The meet will begin at 2:30 o'clock at Tech Field, which will give those who wish to see the Harvard-Dartmouth meet a chance to reach Cambridge, as the H.D. running events will not start until 3:30.

RED SOX BOSS HARD HIT BY PITCHING PROBLEMS

COBB ADDS TO WORRY OF PILOT

Tigers, a Fine Hitting Club, Have the Punch; Welzer or Lundgren to Pitch Today

By NICK FLATLEY.

MANAGER LEE FOHL was likely to shuffle pitchers' names in a hat today and chase out the one he picked from the chapeau for the final crack at the Tigers. The dope on the curvers has been a delusion and a snare all Spring, and Manager Lee is only a few inches from the border of madness every time he thinks of his box artists.

He tried Wiltse on a hunch and the youngster delivered. Then he shot Abol Kleier into the picture and that young man filivvered. So then Lee went back to the veterans. Edmiks unfuried a great game, which he lost, but lost it Wingfield and Ruffing were failures.

So now the distraught manager is ready to try the babies once more. He sent Kiefer to Jacksonville after Ruffing had spilled the beans and Joe did fairly well. Had his support been up to snuff he looked capable of coming through. But he went wild when the defence cracked, and was taken out. He will have a full game to deliver one of these days.

Nick Flatley

Tony Welzer and Lundgren were the likely candidates for work this afternoon, as Fohl wanted to save Edmiks for the series opening tomorrow. Neither youngster has started a game here and it's a copper-riveted cinch that neither can be any worse than some of the supposed stars.

The Tigers are a fine hitting club, and likely to bother any kind of hurling. With each year they seem to add punch. It's a Detroit habit and

Levere, 56 Years, Puts on 'Show' for Athletes

By Universal Service

EVANSTON, Ill., May 14—Chester Levere, fifty-six years old, Evanston athlete has promised to do the following things for the edification of a few of Northwestern University athletes tomorrow.

Skate ten miles, immediately following which he will skip the rope in Patten Gym 5,000 consecutive times. Then, in order to cool off, will run three miles.

After accomplishing these things he will allow three of the heartiest men on the campus to stand on his solar plexus while he hold himself of the ground. While in this position this insistent athlete in the unfriendly is invited to swing a blow to the solar plexus and try to make him relax.

"Impossible," was the verdict of Joe Marsh, old trainer who will witness the performance.

gift to pick up athletes who can hang like bait. And they don't find the kind who can do that and nothing else.

The club has three outfielders Poltergill Mamah and Wingo, who swap around in left field. All are real hitters fast and mighty fine fielders. They would make a good big league garden trio for almost any club.

First Baseman Blue is a star fielder and a .300 hitter, but he's on the bench because Nunn, given a chance to play the bag, has been doing the ball so victorious that Terus can't yank him out. Cunningham the new second baseman is a distance hitter and War at the new third baseman, can likewise flatten the onion.

Teams like that don't need the pitching strength that the leading clubs do and for that reason the Tribe will be a real contender. Only a touch of real anything consistent brand of hurling can be found. But Try hasn't been able to discover that sort of thing in three years of trying.

SCHOOLBOY NOTES

Arlington High, leaders in the Mystic Valley baseball circuit, have met with a very few difficulties this season. Harold Hamm, three-letter athlete, has a batting average well above the .500 mark, which is a nifty percentage for a pitcher.

Coach J. Johnson Duffy of the Andrew's Private School Baseball Club has an infield quartet that cannot be equalled in this vicinity. Captain Johnny Charrette and Josh Dozer thirdbase specialist form the foundation.

Wayne Somerville opposes Kingsley Tech tomorrow at Dilboy Field. Somerville may be without the services of Ed Dolly "Moss" Ellis, Marston and Healy should make an impressive showing.

LEWIS AND GRENNA IN FINISH MAT GO TONIGHT

STRANGLER FAVORED TO WIN

Stasiak and McPherson to Furnish Action in the Semi-Final

WRESTLING MENU TONIGHT

Strangler Lewis, Kansas City, vs. Raffael Grenna, Italian heavyweight champion, best two falls out of three to a finish.

Stanley Stasiak, Poland, vs. Jack McPherson, Scotland, one fall to a finish.

Ned McGuire, Irish heavyweight champion, vs. Leone Labriola, Italy, one fall to win.

Rough House Williams, Newburyport, vs. Prof. Arthur Davis, Belmont, one fall to win.

By JACK CONWAY

RAFFAEL GRENNA, greatest heavyweight wrestler to ever invade this country, will receive an opportunity to gain entrance to the Hall of Fame when he clashes with Strangler Lewis, holder of the world's title belt, in a finish bout, best two falls out of three, at the Boston Arena tonight under the direction of Paul Bowser.

Jack Conway

Grenna is a physical giant, standing six feet three inches tall and weighing 240 pounds. He is solidly built which enables him to move around the mat at a lively clip for a big man. He is also a scientific wrestler and has been particularly successful in breaking loose from head locks. This will help him in a fifty-minute tussle as the Strangler has carried the day in most of his important contests by clamping on crushing headlocks.

The rabbit blow has been barred in the Arena tussle. This is a distinct advantage to Grenna as Lewis is a past master when it comes to using this crushing punch. It has caused his opponents and paved the way for the applying of the headlock.

Boston wrestling fans petitioned Paul Bowser asking that the rabbit blow be barred. Bowser took the matter up with Lewis and Grenna with the result that this unfair blow will not be permitted by Referee Burbank this evening.

BEFORE coming to the United States, Grenna won foreign tournaments staged in Europe from 13 to 120 men entered in each tournament. He also held Stanislaus Zbyszko to a three-hour draw back in 1916 when the latter was at the top of his form.

Grenna has also wrestled with success in South America.

The writer considers Grenna a better performer than either Lewis or Caiza or Renato Gardini. He should give the resourceful Lewis a stiff battle. The Strangler is a favorite to win and unless the unexpected happens should come through with a victory.

THIS semi-final will feature Stanley Stasiak, Lion of Poland, and Jack McPherson, Scottish champion.

Ned McGuire, Irish heavyweight who recently gave Lewis a rugged battle, will have Leone Labriola of Italy as an opponent, while Rough House Williams of Newbury will clash with Prof. Arthur Dabla, former wrestling coach at Tufts.

TOURNEY OPENS AT SHARON G. C.

By BILL GRIMES

Under the auspices of the M. G. A., the Sharon Country Club will hold a two-day open handicap medal play tournament, starting this morning. Sixty-four tees can be arranged by telephoning the club.

The Sharon Country Club is a real course. It is a links-boiler, but one of the most enjoyable to play in this section of the country. The course is in the best condition that ever in the past. The fairways are wide and fast and the greens large and true. Practically every green is terraced and, although firm, a ball can be stopped readily.

Sharon has a couple of very fine short holes. The eighth is a pond hole, which calls for a good iron shot to get home, and if the player fails to reach the green or is strong he is in plenty of trouble.

The ninth is the longest and most difficult on the course. It is rated as a par 4 hole, but it is one of the toughest fours any course presents.

Myles Coen, the new professional at Sharon, is looking for a big field. Many players have already reserved starting times, and those who fail to make reservations will be taken care of. Coen is a past master at staging tournaments.

The Sharon Country Club is lifting two net and two gross prizes of exceptional attractiveness.

The official opening of the Sandy Burr clubhouse will be celebrated with an all-day golf outing, which will be followed by a dinner dance in the evening. The Sandy Burr Club has one of the finest club houses in New England. It is ideally situated, and from the piazza a wonderful view of almost the entire course can be obtained.

Gus White, who is Sandy Burr's manager, expects that there will be over 250 at the dinner. From the number of invitations extended to Greater Boston golfers to enjoy a day as the guest of the Sandy Burr Country Club, it is predicted that the Wayland Club will set a record which will stand for years.

A party of Boston Athletic Association golfers will leave for Lido, Long Island, this evening. The players will play sixteen men teams from the Penn A. C. of Philadelphia, the Crescent A. C. of Brooklyn and the New York Athletic Club tomorrow in a team match.

FIGHTS I CAN'T FORGET

by—TAD—America's Greatest Boxing Authority

When Willard Won Title

THIS is the forty-fourth of a series of famous fights covered by Tad the greatest sporting cartoonist and leading authority on pugilism in this country.

KANSAS was put on the map on April 5, 1915.

A big burly farmer from Pottawatomie County was on that day crowned the heavyweight champion of the world.

Jack Johnson, of Galveston, Texas, the master boxer, boxer and hitter, dropped his crown to the twenty-sixth round at Havana, Cuba, to what he considered the safest thing in his career.

The result was an awful shock to those "in the know," but championship battles in which titles change hands usually are.

Assuming that everything was perfectly on the level in that fight, Jess Willard proved himself to be a real champion. The big black used every trick he knew from the start. He kidded the lumbering Kansan, sifted him with both hands, made him miss worse than a raw amateur and belied him all up, yet he was unable to shove one across that was good enough to drop the challenger of his title.

It was all Johnson for eighteen of the first twenty rounds. The end came in sight in the twenty-fifth round, when Willard reached the stomach with two lefts. Jess opened the round with a rush that carried Johnson off his feet. Into a corner the men struggled while in a clinch, and Willard sank his left into the colored man's body just before ordered to break by Referee Welch.

Another rush and a right to the jaw made Johnson clutch frantically at his opponent in an effort to clinch again, but before he could get hold of the Kansan Jess slammed another left to the body and the colored man was in dire distress.

AFTER the break Johnson kept out of harm's way for a minute and then rallied. But Willard was too strong for him. He rushed Johnson away when he tried to clinch, and then whipped across a hard right to the jaw which staggered the colored man, but Johnson's marvelous defence came to his aid and he managed to smother many a well-directed punch and was still on his feet at the bell.

When the gong ran for the twenty-sixth round Johnson didn't get up from his chair until pushed up by his handlers. He stood in the corner until Welch simply ordered him to come out and fight. Weakly he started towards the centre of the ring.

He was met by Willard before he had taken two steps. He flashed his golden smile as the white man approached, but underneath it there was a serious look. In avoiding the rush he backed into Willard's corner and his big black arms flashed in a tired effort to ward off the blows he saw coming.

Willard swung for the stomach. The blow landed and Johnson, badly hurt, fell into a clinch. As he looked over Willard's shoulder he caught his wife's eye and, knowing that he was about to be put out, signalled for her to leave the arena.

Mrs. Johnson at once got up and was on her way out when Willard pulled back his right fist and shot it true and fast to Johnson's jaw. The colored man fell to the floor flat on his back in Willard's corner. His arms were over his chest and his gloves covered his face.

REFEREE WELCH started the count at once and Willard stepped away. While Welch was counting the fatal ten with the official timekeeper Johnson remained as formerly as a stone man.

Then the referee stepped around Johnson and grabbed Willard's brawny arm, which he raised high in the air, proclaiming him the new champion.

Johnson was dragged to his corner and his seconds brought him around and he was able to leave the ring. He was still staggering as he walked through the rows of spectators to the dressing quarters, and as he fallen champion staggered along he was reviled by the thousands about the ringside. Even some of the women seized the opportunity to tell the colored man that they were glad he had been defeated.

Willard's return to the city—Havana proper—was a triumphal march. He was cheered at every turn, and at the Plaza Hotel was given a reception that reminded the natives of one tendered President Menocal. His only hurt was a cut over the right ear, the result of one of Johnson's punches in the early rounds.

Johnson was taken from the arena by his friends in a closed auto and more said him burnout. He was receiving the harvest that comes to the loser and bitterly he felt the jibes and sneers thrown at him. He showed little signs of the battle and was soon in good shape physically. When asked for his defeat he said he had met a better man and a younger man, and that he knew he was in for a licking before the fight had gone many rounds.

'Bucky' Harris Reported Engaged

Washington, May 14.—Stanley Raymond Harris, "boy" manager of the Washington baseball team and affectionately known as "Bucky" is to marry Elizabeth Sutherland, debutante daughter of Howard Sutherland, allen property custodian and former Senator from West Virginia, it is understood by their friends.

The announcement is expected soon. Both prospective principals declined to deny or confirm it. Her father admits they "have been going together for months." He would not say they are engaged.

The father of Miss Sutherland is known to have admitted friends declare the young man has been house-hunting with a vengeance. What's more, anyone can see the huge emerald-cut diamond that graces the "ring finger" of the girl's left hand.

BUDGET PATTERN FOR YOUR PURSE

Boston Evening American Offers Aid to Housewives in Planning Expenditures of Income

BUDGET TALK NO. 51.
By MARTHA LEE

THERE is no great mystery about a paper pattern is there? You have probably handled hundreds of them and from them made attractive clothing for your family. A budget is really a pattern by which you can cut the family finances and there is no more mystery attached to it than to any dress-making pattern.

As with most patterns, however, certain alterations usually have to be made in a standard budget to suit the requirements of the individual family. Just as you take in here and let out there to make a regulation 36 pattern fit your own special measurements, just so, if your income is, let's say, $26 a week, will you have to let out and take in the standard $36 budget.

The club woman in course requires more dress clothes than the housewife who prefers her recreation in the form of golf or sports and where a strict formal evening gown might be more a cry in the wardrobe of the average business girl or it would probably be a vital necessity for the bride.

Some families gladly economize on food in order to pay more rent than a standard budget would allow for while still others make every sacrifice for the children's education.

However, the standard budget for your income (and there a standard budget for every income) will give you a good general pattern from which to cut. Once you are sure that it fits your special needs the secret of its success is striking oil. It takes no more than 10 minutes a day to jot down your budget items, but once you get two or three days at it it is not so easy to catch up again.

Every mail is bringing in encouraging letters from members of our budget family. For instance, one from Mrs. E. A. J. just received says: "I, too, want to tell you how well your budget is working. I am now on my sixth week. One great help that budget has brought is that when I have money to pay my insurance and other bills it is waiting for me. Budget is working so well that we are already planning for a little car of our own this Summer instead of the economical ford book, because I want to cut down still further on my food expenses."

If you find it hard for you to get form yet, there's no time like the very minute and if you will send me full particulars I'll be only happy to help you work out a budget that will do more for you than I believe you have hoped for

QUESTIONS AND ANSWERS.

Mrs. C. H. asks for a budget for $36 a week. Two adults and one child in the family. Pays $35 rent and $3 a week for furniture on time. Has a garage and upkeep of car. Never has anything left for clothing or saving account. Knows size doesn't pan correctly. Has been married two years and has been able to save anything toward a home.

Now first of all budget will rise right up and tell you that you are paying just a few hairs too high a rent.

A $36 income will only allow you $7.80 for rent including gas, use, heat and electric. $9.50 for food $4 for savings including insurance $4 for clothing, $3.50 for operating including heat and light and $4 for personal, including shoes, soles and heels, etc. Personal must also include the $2 weekly payment on your furniture. You will certainly have to borrow from Peter to pay Paul under present circumstances. Don't hesitate to write me again if this is not entirely clear.

Mrs. O. B. P. has $70 a week, three

THERE'S NOTHING MYSTERIOUS ABOUT A PAPER PATTERN, IS THERE?
A BUDGET IS SIMPLY A PATTERN BY WHICH TO CUT THE FAMILY FINANCES

Home Budget Editor,
Boston Evening American:

Enclosed please find a two-cent stamp for which please send me one of your Home Budget forms

Name.....

Address.....

Write or Print Very Plainly

in family and pays $12 a week rent. Asks for the other divisions

Your rent is practically what it should be as a $70 standard budget will allow you $14 which should cause your husband's business car fares. Food, $18.50 including any meals outside the house, clothing $10, operating $10.50, savings $9 and personal $10.50.

I am sending you a budget form.

If Mrs. T. B. S. will send me her full name and address, I will be glad to send a special form for a clothing budget as well as our regulation budget forms.

Mrs. P. S. asks for a budget of $44 a week. Puts aside $10 every week for rent. Rent is really $8, but has a big of $5 a month to meet supplies her own heat. Puts $10 in the bank every week pays $5 weekly for laundry; $1.36 for insurance and $5 on furniture bill which is slightly over $200. Telephone and gas $6 a month. She seems to have any money to meet these two bills. Husband's luncheon and car fare arrange $3 or $4 a week. He has no carfares. The rest just seems to get eaten up. Some weeks spends $2 or $4 for little things. Husband, self and small child in family. Has car and garage rent around $4 a month, also. Spends $2 weekly on food and never seems to have anything on hand for clothes and often has to dig into the rent money to pay grocer.

I am going to speak right out in meeting and say that the fault is not yours at all. You have so many fixed expenses each month that are high in proportion to your income that there is nothing left for petty clothes, books, etc. On a salary of $50 you should not be paying over $10 a week rent and this should include your husband's commutation ticket. I know I have started something now, but I know, that in your particular town you can get along nicely on less money than you are paying. I know because I lived there twenty years. Your food bill, including the baby's milk and husband's lunches should not be over $12.50 a week. There should be $7.50 for a week set aside for clothing, $5.00 for operating, including heat, light and gas, laundry, if any, and the money spent for telephone. Five dollars a week should cover your savings, including Christmas Club and life insurance; $7.50 weekly is allowed for personal, out of which will have to come payments on the furniture, payments on the back bills, doctors, dentists, newspapers magazines, candy, tobacco, all amusements and luxuries. Can't you arrange to have your furniture payments cut one-half or less and extended over a longer period of time? The ... with the other bills. Far better to pay a little regularly and live within your other expenses than to get behind as you are bound to do under your present system.

Mrs. W. J. J., who by the way is a fairly close neighbor of Mrs. A. C. thought she does not realize it, receives $33.50 weekly from her husband and $5 from her sister. I am not just sure if this is a housekeeping allowance or total family income. Am assuming it is the latter as it is never fair to mix family and keeping allowance

This lady is paying $180 a year on her home and $100 insurance. Has one child. The weekly food bill comes to over $20 a week.

I do hate to be stingy but I have got to say again that $20 a week is too large a food bill for four in the family on a $33.50 income. Hardhearted Budget will allow you only $15 a week. For food including sundays lunches, $11.00 a week for coffee, including afternoon carfares (this includes the street car fare of husband and wife), insurance and taxes on the home. Clothing $6 operating including heat, light, telephone, gas and laundry, $5; savings $6 (including the $100 a year against your mortgage and life insurance), $3 a week for personal which must cover all other expenses. Of course you have to pay rent plus under shelter and if you had rather put it for food than for clothes or recreation it surely is no one's business but your own.

Mrs. F. R. W. writes: "I want to say that your Budget has be een wonderful. For I e first time in many months I got the monthly rent together without a whole day of worrying. Also started saving in the Cooperative Bank of $2 a month. Thanks to the help of the Boston American Budget Talks."

Thank you very much for your letter. I just knew that Budget would help your family finances successfully.

GREETINGS, Everybody!

I am so glad you are enjoying these little chats on home furnishings. Many of you have asked for a talk on the room we use, the most, year in and year out—the living room—so today's the day.

Don't you think that our first thought for this room should be to make it a quiet, restful place that the entire family can enjoy? Let's plan the color scheme in today's living room in mulberry and green—two colors so varied in tone as to please almost anyone

We might start with a floor of soft green or brown jasper linoleum (this is two toned in ripple effect). These tones serve as a good ground for Oriental pattern rugs or plain mulberry rugs. These plain rugs with deep borders in a darker shade, come in stock sizes and are reversible.

I'd suggest painting the wood work a soft tan, the color of the walls or, if your doors are of mahogany shade, stain the woodwork to match. On the walls I would have a quiet warm tone paper and use dull brass fixtures with soft shields to match the color of the walls but interlined with rose to give a warm glow at night when lighted.

Shields for side lights should always be unobtrusive and should match the side wall color against which they are placed. The brackets, not the shields, should be the feature emphasized.

Paint the mantel the same color as the woodwork. As an over-mantel, use a Queen Anne mirror, with a walnut frame. Do not select too delicate or too elaborate a kit mirror for the simple living-room. On either side of the mirror place a wall lighting fixture. This always makes a good grouping. Have the fireplace fender, tongs, etc., match the brackets on the mantel piece. If side fixtures are not used, mantel candelabras are charming, especially a long table—for books and magazines, which make the room look as though its owners had some other interest in life besides neighborhood gossip. I think one notices this lack of books much more in the pretentious, elaborate houses than in the simpler homes—perhaps because the pretentious houses are too much decorated! A pair of green lamp bases, one at either end of the table, with incenting paper ment shades the color of the lamp would add a ... note to the room. The brass ... of a fixture is far more than the fleeting fashion because the floor should be good, quite often one plans to make a feature of it, as in using a black and white tile, or something equally striking.

If mulberry and green are not the colors any fancies for a living-room, a blue or gray could be substituted for the green, and the floor could be a gray tone or plain linoleum. If there are boys in the family, a tan and red and green combination might be advisable, as these are masculine colors.

Don't forget that I have a beautifully illustrated book on home decoration that's yours for the asking. Gives suggestions for decorating every room in the house. You'll get heaps of useful ideas from it!

And that's all from Martha for today

The Temptress

WHEN Moreno returned to the settlement he dismounted in front of Pirovani's house

Torre Rocha was looking up and down in the room he used as an office. He was in mourning and looked even more unhappy than usual. On a table was a brace of revolvers.

Moreno told him that he had found another second, and that he had fully authorized him to discuss the preparations for the duel.

The marquis went on talking with a courtly dignity which deeply impressed Moreno.

"This poor worthy gentleman doesn't really know what this situation is" he thought. "Yet he is so kind and likable ... He evidently hasn't the faintest conception of what is going on, of what his wife has been up to ... nor of the unfortunate part that he himself is going to play ...

"As neither of the two parties wishes to give any explanations, and as the offense is unquestionably serious, the duel will have to be to the death. Don't you agree with me?" asked Ranca.

"My principal," the marquis continued, "will not be satisfied with anything less than three shots at twenty paces, with five seconds for taking aim."

Moreno blinked to show how amazed he was by these conditions and wished to indicate that he was opposed to accepting them, but he remembered a second interview that he had had that morning with Pirovani before he set out for the Rojas ranch.

The Italian had appeared to be transformed by his helpless endurance. He rejoiced in this opportunity to present himself to the "seniora marquesa" in the light of a hero.

"Accept all the conditions" he said to Moreno, "however frightful they may be. I want to make it quite clear that even though I started out in life a simple workman, I am more courageous and more of a gentleman than the French captain."

So the government employe ended by nodding.

"Tomorrow, as soon as it is light the duel will take place," said Torre Rocha as called on Elena late that evening

When a few hours' time two men are going to kill one another," he said, "it is a horrible absurdity which makes it quite impossible for me to sleep tonight. So I have come to say to you, Elena, stop this fright ful thing, for heaven's sake!"

"Go to bed and sleep peacefully just as I shall, Rohledo" said Elena. "Let those two vain male creatures announce all they like that they are going to kill one another. Nothing serious will happen, you'll see!"

Rohledo retired, defeated

At the same hour Canterno, seated at his work table, was finishing a long letter.

"If luck's against me," he thought, "I'll ask Watson to send it to my family.

An hour later his opponent was entering Moreno's lodgings.

Pirovani spoke hastily, struggling hard to conceal his emotion

He put two letters on Moreno's table, one of them very bulky. He pointed to the less voluminous of the two letters.

"That is for my daughter," he said gravely. "Send it to her if anything final happens to me

"This thicker envelope contains an authorization duly made out in proper form which will be able to collect the money the government owes me, and other sums at the bank. A certain proportion as you ought to find possible, by means of all that I have prepared for you in this packet, to wind over my business. I am also leaving a will, appointing you my daughter's guardian. You are the only man here, Moreno, in whom I place my confidence.

asked Phyllis about him and Phyllis disclaimed all knowledge of such a man.

Charlotte knew that she should have told Phyllis of the situation and asked her help but she was so deeply ashamed of the whole affair that she shrank from even taking Phyllis into her confidence. She felt sullied by the mere thought that she had allowed her innocent flirtation with Hill to precipitate her into a disgraceful catastrophe. She was loathesome to herself. She hated the deception her fear forced her to practice upon her husband if indeed it was deception to sin.

The possibility that he might be the agent of the appearance against her, drove her frantic.

To Hill she had nothing but it's a atement bashing. All his at ors before had vanished at the moment when he had crushed her in his arms and attempted to thrust his disgraceful lovemaking upon her. Each preceding move of his to trick Manning had rolled up the score against him in her own mind.

Charlotte in Terror

He had telephoned the next morning, according to his promise, under the name as "Doctor Lawrence". But she had hung up the receiver at the sound of his voice. He tried seven and again, and finally a note came, unsigned—lest it fall into alien hands.

"Won't you forgive me? . . . You were right . . . I was drunk. I didn't know what I was doing. Your sweetness and loveliness made me lose my head and reason. I can never forgive myself, but I hope that you will try, in time, to find it in your heart to do so."

Charlotte destroyed it with shaking hands. It brought back crimson visibly the shame and horror of that night. She didn't answer it.

Flowers came without a card. She knew they were from Hill. She knew that Helga knew, too. So, playing her bitter game, she did not destroy them as she wished to do, but put them in their accustomed vase on her tea table.

And always she felt Manning's eyes watching, questioning, growing grimmer as the days passed.

They had not yet moved to Newton to stay until they could go to Manchester for the Summer. Manning gave no explanation and made no disquieting to Charlotte, who was full of vaging fears and alarming thoughts. She knew how a criminal must feel, awaiting apprehension for a crime, suspecting the slightest move, the slightest word, finding significance in the most trivial circumstances.

And, she told herself bitterly again and again, she was innocent. She was guilty of no greater crime than a flirtation, an indiscretion perhaps but an innocent one. No worse perhaps not as bad, as any of the silly little affairs that all the society married women of her set carried on with attractive bachelors.

Her period of waiting for the blow to fall came to an end one night in June.

Leila had returned from school, covered with the honors of commencement week parties. She was peevish and fretful for a few days and then one night she was taken suddenly acutely ill.

Charlotte Cornered

Manning, seriously alarmed, called the family practitioner, only to find that he was away on a case. Charlotte unwittingly had told the truth. Another doctor of his acquaintance failed to respond.

He turned from the telephone to [illegible] who bent over the bed of [illegible] ing child and said:

"What is the number of your Dr. Lawrence?"

Charlotte stood up, white to the lips. He had a clear glimpse of her face before she got control of herself.

"You don't call him," she protested. "There's a doctor much nearer—right around the corner."

Manning's lips tightened. His eyes were grim. Suspicion long dormant flamed in them.

"I am going to call your doctor friend," he said, "to save the life of my child. Give me the number at once."

Charlotte faced her husband shaking and trembling. She read in his eyes that his suspicion was rapidly changing to conviction. She knew that the moment had arrived for a show-down. Her little face was set to end.

Her mind worked desperately, seeking a subterfuge. But she knew that it was too late. Every avenue of escape was closed. She was caught in a net of her own weaving.

If she let Manning call the real Dr. Lawrence, he would find an entirely different man from the one he had met in her room the night he had returned from Chicago. If she gave Lawrence Hill's telephone number, she might be endangering Leila's life.

Hill with his shrewdness might grasp the situation and arriving on the scene as "Doctor Lawrence," claim the necessity for calling in a specialist to cover his own total ignorance of medicine, but Charlotte knew that the deny might prove fatal to Leila.

The child ceased fretfully on her pillows and moaned.

Charlotte could not save herself at the sacrifice of the girl. Exposure was certain in the end.

She flung a coil back from her face with a despairing gesture.

Manning, who had missed no detail of the struggle that was written on her face, spoke. And his voice was cold and stern as she had never heard it before.

Charlotte Confesses

"Tell me the truth, Charlotte. Your Doctor Lawrence was not a physician summoned to attend you that night when you feigned illness."

She nodded in assent.

"He was a lover—come to you in my absence?"

"No, no, no!" she flung out her hands in protest, grasped his arm that still held the telephone instrument. "I will tell you everything, Harry, but don't deal for Leila's sake."

"I think I already know everything," he said wearily. "I seem to have known for a long time—but I didn't want to believe."

He took the receiver from the hook and gave a number.

"I am calling Dr. Cherry," he said carelessly. "Will you go to our room now, please. We will discuss this later."

Charlotte looked at him helplessly, dazedly.

"You think I—I'm not—good enough to stay with Leila?" she asked falteringly. "I swear to you—"

He raised his hand to check her. "Please. Not now. Later."

She left the room stumbling as if suddenly blinded, dragging herself down the hall.

In her own room she flung herself face downward on her bed and lay there tearless despairing.

She heard the doctor arrive and Helga moving about at his bidding. She heard Manning finally accompanying the physician to the door.

"Nothing serious at all," she heard the latter say briskly, while she held her breath. "Just a case of too much sweets in the hot weather. Don't worry. She ought to be feeling fine by tomorrow evening."

It seemed hours before Manning

Hot Water Helps Modern Hygiene

Doctors say that the use of hot water is a definite aid in the treatment of many ills.

In fact, hot water therapeutics has become a distinct and very important branch of modern medicine.

Devices for heating water have been perfected, which operate for just a few cents per day, and the reason there are houses whicin are not equipped with efficient and economical water heaters is mostly because the owners are not aware of the reasonable cost of such conveniences. How much easier it is to Mother (and on baby, too) when hot water is waiting to pour out at the touch of the tap. How easy it will make it for the boy, who's chief aibi is "cold water," if you could turn on the tap at any time of day and show him the steam! How easy it would make it for Dad when he could stick his shaving brush under the tap at six bells and always get enough hot water to tame the bristles—not waiting for the kettle to sing!

These are some of the reasons why water heaters make it possible to have more comfort and more hygiene in the bath room.

The Boston Consolidated Gas Company has made it possible for every household to have a Gas Water Heater installed and connected during May for a down payment of 75 cents—the balance in easy monthly payments.—Advertisement.

"Love Comes in Old Clothes"

DRAWN BY NELL BRINKLEY

ROMANCE— and REALITY.

THE expectant young man who looks in the eyes of all the feminine world that he passes, eager to see destiny—Love's own eyes—looking back at him, the young manman who can just swim well enough to float in still water, dreams of his fate coming in the form of heroic rescue on his part, dreams of his love coming to him out of the sea in his strong arms—in plain words, of saving some ravishing girl's life from the huge surf, of blinding love at first sight, and of basking the rest of his days in the dazzling light of her admiring eyes!

And it comes something like this other picture. Two young people—both afraid of the farther line of breakers, find themselves jumping up and down, both holding to the surf-line and laughing together at nothing at all; unless it's because sousing cold spray and smiling young faces are something to laugh a

They expected! Love with poetic hair, heaven-cast eyes, a purple pen. And he comes in overalls, a faded shirt, an old hat with a hole in it and freckles!

And they find they like him much better than the aforesaid vision of him that they harbored.

Especially when our hero is NO hero, and the heroine is only beautiful enough to suit him and Love.

DAILY SHORT STORY

THE STICK IN THE MUD

By A. Marie Crawford

"OF course I'm jazzy, Bill! Don't be a stick in the mud!" urged Ellen slangily. "I can step with the best of them and, as you think, with the worst of them, too. Now, I'm quite gone on you." She viewed his air feet of masculine good looks with complacent satisfaction. If I were not smitten with your charms, young man, I wouldn't even listen to your little discordant song about the way I act.

"But Ellen, an engaged girl—"Don't talk like an old lady, Bill. Who knows I'm engaged. Not a soul but the family and Molly White, and the only reason she had to bear the news was because it takes her so long to make a crepe de chine trousseau. Mother had so many cousins of everything—they were rive or six garments then instead of one as we do now so I will come cheaper than she did as a bride—but she is going to see to it that I have enough of undies and top things, too, to last quite a while."

Bill's set expression relaxed a little and he smiled at that. It was a very wonderful thing to be engaged. It was a very wonderful thing to be engaged to Ellen. He loved her so. Slang, breezy manner and all! They effin Ellen, whom all the chaps adored. And she was going to marry him! He lifted his head at the thought.

"If you think I get a kick out of Clarence Martin holding my hand or Pete Tyler pinching my arm—I believe they were the things that displeased you last night at the dance—then you're one more mistaken male! Nobody's serious about a pat or a pinch or a light, passionless kiss any more than darling! Walk up! It's just a sort of habit in the crowd like a girl powdering her nose! It doesn't mean anything"

Bill sat very quietly after that, staring down through the garden where roses blossomed over trellises and pansies and forget-me-nots fringed pools of water lilies. Occasionally gold fish flashed in their shadowy depths like streaks of brilliant sunshine.

Ellen pitched her tennis racket on the gravelled path and drew a little nearer. "Don't pout, old thing! It a such a lovely world"

Bill regarded her gravely. Then he flushed and threw an arm around her shoulders. "Right!" he explained clearly. "You set the pace and I'll follow as fast as my clum sine s will allow. I am too serious! You're an "issue" and I'm a has-been. You jum me up a little!"

"Listen to the college man! What love can do to a Harvard ac ..!"

"I'll try to get some pep in me tonight and make you proud of me. There a that pretty Susan Miller! Come to think of it, I wouldn't be a half bad experience to kim that child goodnight." He jumped up and lifted Ellen to her feet. "I am a stick in the mud, but who knows, with a teacher like you, I may be able to prod myself out of the rut. I have one whole day and two more nights before I must start back home to go to work—hard work, young lady, so that I can support you in the style to which you are accustomed"

Ellen looked up at him, almost shyly at that. "Bill," she said softly, "it will seem awfully funny to have you buy clothes and everything for me." She walked along beside him toward the house, a moist, confiding hand in his. At the steps of the terrace she stopped and faced him, blue eyes looking soberingly into his. "I like you as you are. You needn't—needn't even try to prop it up for me."

Bill thought that over while he cleaned up for luncheon. Ellen evidently did not like the idea of leaning around for him. It was all right for her to flirt with the rest of the boys. She was not serious about it, she said. But Bill's own views had been her serts to two or three petting affairs and the fact that everyone did it had not been comfort to his wounded pride. He had asked her to marry him, on this visit to her home. And the very first place they had gone together after that he had seen Clarence Martin holding her hand—her hand that was to wear his ring. He knew, of course, that she was as pure as an angel, but he did not like the loose way the chaps in the crowd acted toward her. It would be a terrible thing if he and Ellen should quarrel over some of the trivial things that often broke up engagements. His heart turned right over in his breast at the thought of losing her. He was twenty-eight. It was no foolish young affair with him. He had loved Ellen for two years, ever since she had visited his sister who had been her room mate in college. As he ran down the steps to Linchon he wondered if it would not be a good idea to pretend to be called home suddenly and avoid any chance of a quarrel over jealousy. For he was jealous! There was no doubt of that

He dared often enough that night with Susan Miller to cause a little comment. He realized that Ellen was regarding him narrowly although she was the belle of the party and scarcely turned more than once in the arms of any chap. He never knew any girl to have so many dates. Susan looked like a gypsy and had the lure of one. Every time he left her, he had in his mind that he would not speak to her again. It might make Ellen angry. Then he remembered Ellen's laughing admonition that he must not be a stick in the mud. Moreover Susan seemed to be interested in teaching him a few new tricks so back he went to her. It was late in the evening, the orchestra was playing a dreamy sort of thing—the lights were low—and looking down, Susan's face was very sweet and very near. As they whirled into a dim corner, Bill kissed her. Looking up, rather startled at himself, he met the astonished eyes of Ellen. He felt a flush of glory in himself. Never again would she twit him about being an old timer. She had called him that once, angrily, when he had remonstrated with her about flirting.

But if Ellen cared, she gave no sign. When the dance was over, she deliberately walked across the ballroom to invite Susan and her beau to go home with them to have sandwiches and ginger ale. Susan accepted, big dreamy eyes fixed on Bill's face adoringly. Bill began to feel uncomfortable.

"You take Susan home in my car, Hill, Ellen said when it was time to break up the supper party. "I'll teach Tom a new step of the Charleston while you're gone.

But Bill winked at Tom, and in less than five minutes after Susan and Bill left the room, Tom made an excuses and departed also. Ellen curled up on the couch and proceed to [illegible]

Bill tiptoed back and knocked softly on the door. "What's the matter honey?" he asked softly, calling.

Ellen sat up and pulled her eyes dry. "How'd you get back so soon?" she demanded. "I thought I had time—time to—"

"To cry?" Bill sat down beside her, leaned over and put his hand on hers.

She pushed it away. "I hate being pawed over," she said quickly. "Especially when there's another woman's powder on the man's hands. And her favorite lip stick on his mouth, too!" she added, scornfully.

Billy wondered, sadly if Susan's lip stick had rubbed off on him. Then anger burned in him like a flame. He laid heavy hands on her shoulders. "I'm not pawing you. You're going to be my wife."

"I am not," came staccato from Ellen's whitening lips. "If a man likes me well enough to want to marry me, do you think for a minute he no would entertain himself by kissing—kissing, over and over again, some other girl—soon after?"

For he was in the fire and storm. But Bill held her there. "Once, only once and then just because you startled me at me today, called me a stick in the mud. You said there was nothing in a casual pat or pinch or kiss—a kick in it, for you but you allowed it just the same. Said that all those little fan-illarities were just a sort of habit, like a girl powdering her nose."

Ellen was staring at him. Two tears began to gather in her eyelids. "But it's different, Bill—I just know that—soon you—you do it!"

Bill opened the gold vanity in her lap and carefully, extremely powdered the little streaks where tears had run. Then she dropped her head on his shoulder and all the powder on one side of her face was immediately transferred to his tuxedo.

"Let's get married tomorrow, Billun, before I go back home. You can manage without the crepe de chene trousseau, can't you? Much better than I can manage a day without you!"

Very close in his arms, she sobbed. "Yes, but I think I'll let mother send it on anyway. It will save you so much money," she whispered generously.

MEDBURY SAYS---

By John P. Medbury

HALF the women who live in the suburbs are wed for love, the other half get married so that they can have somebody to carry their handbags.

OF course, some women prefer to stay single and carry their own packages.

WHEN a suburban man goes to the altar he has to promise to love, honor and bring home all the seed catalogues.

EVERY woman loves flowers, and when a wife moves to the country she wants to grow something besides wrinkles.

ONE husband was so lazy that he bought three dollars worth of pea and rolled them home one at a time.

HE said he was tickled to death that he didn't live up hill.

HE got off at the station the other night with a bushel of potatoes and knocked them home with a basket perpetual.

HE was sorry they weren't cocoanuts so that he could have used his golf clubs.

HIS wife had him carry so many packages that he thought he'd made a mistake and been married by a shipping clerk instead of a minister.

HE was always surrounded by so many ladies on the train that the conductor could never find him to collect his fare.

HE tried to secure a divorce the other day to get rid of some of the packages.

HIS wife paid for their marriage License. He said she could have spent ten dollars more and gotten a good pack mule.

ONE woman said she'd rather have a mule any day. They never go around the house growling.

AND a horse very seldom calls up at the last minute to tell you that he won't be home for dinner.

A DONKEY may not be as ornamental around the house as a husband, but he doesn't sit out on the front porch in his shirt sleeves.

FOXY GRANDPA'S INTERESTING BEDTIME STORY

By FOXY GRANDPA.

"YES," I said, "some animals are very good fathers and others aren't. And even some fishes are good fathers."

"Fishes?" asked Bobby, surprised to think that such cold-blooded creatures could have any feeling at all.

"Oh yes," I said. "Take for instance the little sea horse."

"What does he do?" asked Bobby.

"Even before his babies are born"

Had skin trouble so bad was ashamed to appear in public
Resinol completely healed it

Estriken, Pa., March 4—"Last summer I had a skin affliction on my face, hands and arms. It kept spreading until I could not shave and hated to be seen in public. The itching was very annoying and nothing I took gave me any relief. A friend recommended your Resinol, Ointment and I bought some at once. The first application gave me relief, but I continued using it freely and in a very short time the itching disappeared and the trouble was completely cured. Needless to say, I have great faith in "Resinol" for skin disorders." (Signed) J. E. Satterman.

I explained, "he carries around the eggs which his wife lays in a little pouch underneath his tummy."

"Why, he's a regular sea-going kangaroo, isn't he?" exclaimed Bobby, laughing.

"And, there's another one, too," I went on.

"Who is he and what does he do?" asked my little human interrogation point.

"The stickleback," I answered. After his wife lays her eggs in the globe-like nest in the bottom of the river, he sits right in the nest with his nose out through the tiny hole in it to guard the eggs until they are hatched. He won't even trust his wife! He won't let her in for fear she might injure the eggs.

"I've heard," said Bunny, quietly, "that lady sticklebacks are not the best mothers in the world."

"That seems to be the case," I agreed.

"I was very fortunate," said Bunny, "in my parents. I certainly had a good father and mother."

"I know that rabbits are wonderful mothers, and that they line their nests with the soft fur which they pull out of their own breast, but I never heard much about father rabbits," I declared.

"Father rabbits," murmured Bunny, "are very kind and affectionate and mine was no exception."

"Tell me about your father," said Bobby, who was much interested in our conversation. Bunny's eyes took on a faraway expression and I thought that there was a suspicion of tears in them as he commenced to speak.

"I remember my father well," he started. "He was a big, gray fellow—I get my fairness from my mother. She was pure white, and what a busy rabbit she was. You know, of course, that a mother rabbit has several families a year, and they're not little families, either. There are often six or eight of us born at a time. So you can imagine that she has her paws pretty full."

"I should say so," I said.

"Well," said Bunny, "you know in one way we are very much like kittens."

"Like kittens" gasped Bobby.

"Yes, declared Bunny, "because we don't have our eyes open for ten or twelve days after we are born, and during that time our mothers have to stay down in the nursery underground to take care of us. But when we get our eyes open she takes us to the entrance of the warren to sniff the air and go for a little scamper."

"Doesn't the father help her, then?" asked Bobby.

"Not until our eyes are opened," said Bunny. "I really think a father rabbit would be in the way before that time."

"I suppose so," I said. "Do you remember your father well, Bunny?"

"Perfectly," he sighed. "After the time when my brothers and sisters and I had our eyes opened he used to watch us out in front of our front door, and I remember how he used to take us between his paws and caress us. We loved our father very dearly. And the tasty herbs he used to bring us! I can see him now coming across the field with a dainty bit in his mouth for us."

Then Bunny became very quiet.

"It's nice to have such sweet memories of your father, isn't it Bunny?" I asked, patting the little rabbit on his soft, white head.

"GENERAL EXTRAVAGANCE" IS CITED BY MOODY'S

Moody's weekly review of financial conditions says bank loans in New York and in the country as a whole have been expanding faster than deposits in spite of the existing plethora of both loans and deposits. Analysis indicates that this expansion may be due to the decline in profits of some industries, to a rather general extravagance, and to the still unpaid loans against the late real estate booms and other speculations.

B. & M. HELPED 'OVER TOP' BY FORT

By FRANK H. MELOON,
Financial Editor.

Gerrit Fort
(Copyright by Harris & Ewing.)

"Who deserves the most credit or helping the Boston & Maine Railroad 'over the top'" a correspondent from Maine inquires. It would be unfair to give any one person all the credit and perhaps almost as unfair to give any individual most of the credit. The fact remains, however, that traffic has been on the up trend since the U. S. Railroad Administration, leaving that post to come to Boston.

"How attractive the old Cape Cod windmills would be to the landscape if the few left should be restored," says James L. Edwards, "they are extremely picturesque and typically Cape Cod in character. The first Boston windmills were 'not Dutch in form like the Cape ones, but shorter, blunter, with a barrel shaped top. A picture of one of old Boston, Lincolnshire, England, is in the Boston Public Library rooms under the Old State House."

"There are two collections of photographs of old windmills from all countries who shave them; one owned by a Philadelphia collector and one my own. They have been used in China for ages; the Crusaders brought back the windmill idea from the Orient. A few years ago the Chatham mill was running. One at Eastham is owned by the Village Improvement Society. The very old one at one of the Yarmouths lost its fans in a recent gale. Looked at simply as a scheme to 'boom' real estate it would be worth while, but as a sentimental and artistic enterprise it would be worth infinitely more."

* * *

It seems a wonder to the writer that billboard concerns do not erect windmills to use the "fans" for advertising purposes. The Sharples-Kodak people might be interested in Mr. Edward's idea. Certainly the scenic attractions of the WEmpad a vast financial asset in securing our growing Summer resort business, could it be built of record, and not also enlarged, where this is artistically possible.

LIBERAL EXTRA IS ORDERED ON GEN. MOTORS

Further liberal disbursement was ordered to common stockholders of General Motors when directors voted an extra $4 cash dividend.

A. P. Sloan, Jr.

This payment is in addition to the regular quarterly distribution of $1.75 per share and marks the third time this year that the corporation's board has displayed liberality in the matter of dividends.

On March 13 last the regular rate on the common was raised from $6 to $7 annually, while in the first week of 1926 the corporation paid $5 extra in cash on the common shares.

The General Motors directors "feel that certain stockholders are entitled to a special distribution at this time in view of the very satisfactory earnings and the strong financial position of the corporation," President Alfred P. Sloan, Jr., declared after the board meeting.

Houghton, Mich., May 14.—Not including copper on hand, the copper mines of Houghton and Keweenaw counties have been assessed for taxation purposes over $1,000,000 more this year than last, the Michigan tax commission. The total valuation of mine properties in the two counties was fixed by the commission at $30,585,000, as against $30,-627,823 last year but there was more than $1,500,000 less refined copper on hand this year than last.

More than half of the increase was applied to properties in Keweenaw county the total for mine properties in that county being $1,010,000 more than last year. Part of this gain was due to the valuation of the new Calumet & Hecla Railroad to the Ahmeek mine figures.

In Houghton County the principal increase was in the valuation of the Quincy & Hecla reclamation plant. These were assessed at $3,288,000 this year, against $8,701,260 last year, an increase of $586,740.

By B. C. Forbes

Wall Street bears will not be able to find any encouragement to attack stock prices in the interviews with bankers and other business leaders which have been appearing in this column or in the additional cities given today. Satisfactory conditions and optimistic rational optimism prevail, as will be noted.

F. M. Law, First National Bank, Houston, Texas: "Each month this year has beaten the same month last year. There is no serious unemployment in our district. Houston last year led all cities in building increase, except Miami. This brought a heavy influx of labor.

"It may astonish many people to know that the four ports of Texas handled a greater value of commerce than passed through New York.

"Pittsburgh Steel Company, Bethlehem Steel and the American Steel & Wire Company have been building warehouses in Houston during recent months. We are also constructing a distributing center. Then, we have half-a-dozen oil refineries. Industrial is accomplishing more even than was dreamed of in the way of expanding our exports and imports."

Lessons for America

We, Like England, Have Coal Problems to Settle

The basic sanity of the British mind is shown in both the manner and spirit of the strike settlement.

Its manner accords due deference to political authority and retrieves labor's tactical error in embarking on a general strike.

But its spirit is the spirit of justice. The intolerable conditions in the coal industry, the onus of which short-sighted "die hards" sought to impose on labor, are to be approached this time with a sincere and earnest purpose to correct them as far and as fast as possible.

And, as is fitting and proper, the costs of the correction are to be distributed somewhat in proportion to the blame.

That should have been done before the strike compelled its doing.

But Britain learns best under compulsion. It has the remarkable attribute of being able to see sanely even when in the heat of conflict—a quality highly to be recommended to other peoples.

The entire incident is rich in instruction to America.

We, too, have a coal problem, not so acute as Britain's, but resembling Britain's in many particulars.

We have an anthracite problem and a bituminous problem. The anthracite problem has already resulted in many strikes and we have done nothing to remove the provocations which periodically create strikes and public hardship.

We also have a bituminous problem, with 15,000 more mines and 200,000 more miners than are needed to supply our demand.

In the bituminous industry high cost operations are carried on in competition with low cost operations until trade stability is shaken, labor's rights are imperiled and a great overload of waste is thrust upon consumers.

The wise time to undertake correction of these unsatisfactory conditions is when minds are cool—for we lack the British capacity to think best when most harassed.

Next Spring wage agreements in many bituminous fields expire and their renewal may cause serious strife.

Foreseeing this likelihood, can we not summon wisdom enough to set up corrective agencies in advance?

Innumerable bills are before Congress with this purpose in view. A glance across the water should admonish us that their sane consideration is timely.

United States of Brazil

This Country Doesn't Realize Brazil's Importance

Mr. Rocha, editor of the excellent Portuguese O'POPULAR, published in Boston, wonders why AMERICAN newspapers give much publicity to a ridiculous Prince Victor Napoleon, "Bonapartist pretender to the throne of France," and print nothing about the new President-elect of Brazil.

Mr. Rocha must know that the United States, like other parts of the world, is far from realizing the importance of the United States of Brazil as a great and important people, destined soon to rank among the greatest nations of the world in wealth and power, as it does now in size and intelligence.

We turn away from our own continent, waste time on preposterous, out-of-date, meaningless European royalties, and neglect important things on these two great American continents.

If a few of the United States billions invested in doubtful European bonds were sent to develop the waterpower and other resources of Brazil it would benefit this nation as well as Brazil, and the money would be invested safely.

Unanimous

That's Good

The world's two youngest preachers met in Kansas City and discovered that their creeds were identical, which is important and a great relief.

One is the Rev. Uldine Mabelle Utley, aged fourteen, the other Rev. Paul Fountain, aged twelve. Both say: The whale DID swallow Jonah, Daniel WAS in the lion's den, the sun DID stop, at Joshua's command, thus prolonging the day (never mind about the theory that it is the earth that turns), sin originates in dance halls, and they are against rouge and all cosmetics.

They preach to crowded houses. Well they may. They know. Doubt does not worry them.

Mussolini's Kind

He Likes Hard Hitters

John Adams Abbot of Boston while visiting the Vatican got into a row with Salvadore Astrologo, an Italian guide to the sights of Rome, and went to prison.

Young Mr. Abbot, just out of college, is accused of insulting Mussolini. Ordinarily that would be serious. But Mussolini will forgive him when he hears that John Adams Abbot fractured Astrologo's jaw and closed both his eyes. That young gentleman is a man after Mussolini's own heart.

Sea Fleas

Near Marseilles, on the French coast, an inventor is experimenting with a hydro-glide", part boat and part airplane, with which he plans to cross the ocean to America.

He has named it the "sea flea" because it hops over the waves in long jumps.

The old sea, which yesterday saw Grecian galleys venturing warily from shore, and later Spanish galleons plowing home from new lands, and which today sees little men on its shores, marveling at the speed of their steamships, may tomorrow see only plodding freight carriers upon its bosom.

Far overhead the passenger planes and dirigibles will slant past, and in long jumps sea fleas may bound along with lightning speed on their way from coast to coast.

A Costly Scrap Called Off

By T. E. Powers

THE DEMOCRACY OF GREAT WRITERS

By DR. FRANK CRANE

WHEN it comes to great books, such as those of Shakespeare and Goethe and Victor Hugo, it will be found that they appeal to the masses. The conscience of Jean Valjean or Macbeth, and the sorrows of Werther are such as every man feels.

Those books that are written for a class or appeal only to the elect are not the classics of the world. They are superficial rains, you might say, and soon run off.

But great literature is like the whole sea. It is the cumulative spiritual gains of the ages, and every man may take some part of it for his own.

Dr. Harry Emerson Fosdick has written a pamphlet called "A Man and His Reading" which calls attention to this fact, that the great books of today are books of universal service.

Mrs. Browning has said that no man can be called friendless who has God and the companionship of good books. Great books are like God in the fact that they appeal to the universal feelings of the world, and every man may use them as his own.

Those who write for some special class or for the initiated, or who seek in some way to perk their style out in a way that will appeal to a few have a limited reading. It is those who speak to the world that have a long life.

No man spoke to the heart of humanity and touched upon more universal themes than did Jesus and Moses. Much of the lasting qualities of the religions these persons founded is due to this universality of their appeal.

It is the common man who lasts. Democracy endures. Classes change and fail. Faiths come and go, but the eternal instincts of humanity are the same, yesterday, today, and forever.

The more, therefore, that one can launch his craft out into this great sea of universal feeling and thought, the more likely he is to endure. And the more he sails his boat in the rivers and by-ways of experience, the more ephemeral he is.

CHILDREN REFLECTIONS OF WHAT THEY SEE AND HEAR

Are you continually preaching to your children that they mustn't do this and that because it is against the rules of good breeding, or contrary to law and order, or at variance with your orders?

Then what kind of example do you set on occasion?

When driving do you exceed the speed limit, cut corners, swear at those who cut in on you? When some one gives you too much change do you keep it and mention the fact at home?

Do you expect your children to be upright and square when you so often play a dishonest part?

There may be considerable difference between your infractions and the lengths of guilt to which your children go, but how can you expect your children to distinguish the difference?

You are chagrined when you hear your children quarreling with other boys and girls.

Yet you are often cross and engage in heated arguments with your wife or your husband.

Your child may not display temper at home—perhaps he doesn't dare; but with such an example it will likely crop out when he is out from under your control.

Children are mere reflections of what they see and hear at home.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

I'M taking the stand for Alice and Pa today.

Alice is eighteen and works in the First National Bank. Pa is fifty-three, and holds down a job in White's Hardware Emporium.

And they both have a growl. This is the growl.

They'd like to bring company home for dinner, but Ma throws such a fit they don't dast.

Not that Ma dislikes company. But she has fixed ideas about entertaining.

"Gosh! She's got to have at least two days to get ready. I'll never forget the last time I had Edna up. Believe me—I'll never do it again. I said to Ma—'Say Ma I want to bring Edna home Friday night for supper. We're going together to a party at the Wilsons, and she doesn't wanta bother to go home to eat. So I told her that she could eat with us. Don't bother getting anything special, Ma. Edna won't notice, even if you do. Jes' any old thing!'"

"Well, honest, you'a thought I had asked the Queen of England to eat with us the way Ma took on. She planned what we'd have for a couple of days and she got all fussed up because our dishes don't match. Then she began to get all worked up because the dining room hadn't been Spring cleaned. So nothing would do but she had to take down the curtains and wash them on Thursday. Well, of course she worked so hard at that she got a touch of lumbago and Friday she was crippling around like something the cat dragged in.

"Well, by the time Edna got there, you'd thought an earthquake had hit the house. Everything was changed around and so clean you wouldn't know it. Ma was so dolled up she looked like a parade. And the stuff she'd cooked to eat! I bet there was eight courses—all fancy stuff.

And of course as luck would have it, Edna had a new filling in her tooth and all she could eat was some bread and gravy. And we were both in such a hurry to dress we rushed right through, anyway.

"Well, believe me, Ma was sore the next day. She had a sick headache and her lumbago was worse and she blamed it all on me. She said it wasn't any use for a Mother to work her insides off for her family because she never got appreciation. I told her no one had asked her to work her hands off. All we'd wanted was a sandwich and a cup of coffee. And we didn't care whether the darned old dining room was Spring-cleaned or not. Then Ma burst out crying and said that was all the thanks she got.

"Well, believe me, that's the last time I ask Edna home for dinner. And then everyone wonders why girls don't bring their friends home and why they go out to cabarets instead. That's why!"

That's Alices growl. Pa's is in the same key. Some of the fellows down at the store are unmarried. Lonely chaps. Pa would like to bring them home for a bite.

He's tried it once or twice.

"Just let him see an extra plate and let him be one of the family," suggests Pa, with that trusting confidence peculiar to married males. "We always have enough for one extra and Jim ain't one of those fussy fellows. Why, there's nothing he'd like better than a plate of stew and a dish of rice pudding. Fellows like that get sick of fancy restaurant eating."

KNOWS BETTER NOW.

Pa knows better now.

When he and Jim want to spend a social evening together, they take their bite elsewhere.

And Ma sits and wonders why Alice and Pa are so ungrateful.

A lot of other mothers are wondering the same thing. Why don't Dad and the kids enjoy the home? Why don't they bring their friends around?

That's why, Ma.

Now don't get riled and tell me that I'm only a newspaper woman and I don't know what I'm talking about. I'm not only a newspaper woman, I'm a housekeeper. And I know all about this business of "setting an extra plate and letting them be one of the family." Once I, too, washed the dining room curtains and repainted the bathroom every time any one dropped in for a cup of tea. But large gobs of bitter experience put me wise to myself.

Now when my folks say that Jim or Edna is going to drop in and take pot luck, I take them at their word. For I know they are telling the truth. I have also found that pot luck, even with spots on the table cloth and the butter abrupt, is worth a dozen of my old, elaborate, fussy dinners that ever took a week to prepare.

If a Man Threw MUD in Your Face You'd Fight

When He Coughs or Sneezes Deadly Disease Germs, WORSE Than Mud in Your Face, You Say, "Poor Fellow, What a Cold He Has"

In ordinary loud conversation a man cursed with grippe can send the germs flying thirty feet in front of him as he talks.

If you listen to a public speaker and sit within thirty feet of him, you can catch whatever he may have. Let that console you for a back seat, sometimes.

When a man coughs or sneezes violently, he scatters microbes to a distance that only the microbes perhaps could estimate correctly.

It is certain that the poor fellow, ill-bred and reckless, who with face uncovered coughs or sneezes in a street car or other public place risks infecting with his cold and any other complaint lodged in his mucous membrane as many human beings as there are near him.

We have laws now that arrest and punish a man for spitting in public, which is a beginning of decency.

But remember that the man who coughs and sneezes with his face uncovered does more harm even than the other ill-bred savage who spits upon the floor.

Sneezing and coughing are processes by which nature kills germs and ejects them from the system.

Sneezing is beneficial to the sneezer, and poisonous to those near him, when he lacks the decency to cover up his face.

The man constantly seen and heard in public places sneezing and coughing violently with his face uncovered and looking rather proud of himself because he can sneeze so ably, should be treated with contempt like any other yahoo.

We cannot, perhaps, arrest a man for coughing and sneezing with face uncovered—although we know that such conduct is ABSOLUTELY RESPONSIBLE FOR EPIDEMICS OF GRIPPE AND OF OTHER DISEASES.

But it is possible, through public contempt, to teach better manners.

When you see some ill-mannered ruffian filling a public vehicle with germs, sneezing ostentatiously and openly as though it were a highly moral act, take out your own handkerchief and hold it before your face as a gentle hint. When he finishes his performance, hold your handkerchief close to the floor and shake it out gently, as much as to say, "I am trying to get rid of the disease germs which that hyena has been scattering so generously."

One thing that the ill-bred ruffian cannot stand is to have someone suggest that he IS ill-bred.

Women have almost stopped tobacco chewing in semi-civilized sections of this country by glaring at the chewing, spitting ruffians. We could in the same way discourage criminal spreading of disease germs as above.

We might hang small paper handkerchiefs in the cars with a sign, "Please take one and use it for coughing and sneezing if you can't afford a handkerchief of your own." That would help.

But public contempt would do more than all.

Mankind can stamp out the invisible disease germs as monstrous animals have been stamped out. And the wiping out of disease requires only common sense, decency and consideration for others. Make your children especially understand this. The next generation should do the work that this generation neglects.
